In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

It's nice for our high school young that, on the invitation of various MLAs, so many of them are able to spend an instructive and edifying afternoon observing their Legislative Assembly in action.

For the sponsoring member, it must be pleasant too—doing his stuff with all those bright, intelligent faces looking down upon him.

On Tuesday, I happened to be up in the peanut gallery with a couple of future voters—even legislators, for all we know—shuffling their big feet behind me.

Funny Head?

Here's a sampling of their muttered conversation:

"Hey! Look! Look at that one with the funny-shaped head."

"You mean the guy with the paper in front of his face?"

"No, the one that looks like he's asleep... Will we have to do an essay on this stuff?"

"I guess so. They did last year."

"What a drag!"

Lardhead!

I don't offer that as a typical reaction. In fact, I'm sure most of the boys and girls who are exposed to B.C.'s provincial parliament—or British Columbia's, since the premier likes our province spelled in full—are not of a sort with that lard-headed pair.

What I do suggest though, is that in education we are, as one NDP member observed Tuesday afternoon, dealing not with white mice but young human beings.

This being so, I think we'll bypass the froth and frolic that enlivened parliament's first pass at Education Minister Leslie Peterson's estimates, and listen to practical minded Lois Haggen, NDP matron member for Grand Forks-Greenwood.

Gone Ahead

"We want to know what is cooking in education," said she, after a nousewifely reference to ministerial plans which have been "simmering on the back burners."

She then followed her usual practice of getting down to basics.

"We have a great many confused young people," she said, who are wondering where, in all this big educational program they fit."

Dryly, she noted that the proposed regional junior colleges "are not a reality at the moment."

Then she turned to the vocational schools which weigh heavy in Mr. Peterson's master plan.

"We've gone ahead with equipment and buildings without being quite sure how we're going to use them... We went overboard on highways, and now we're going all out on education. I certainly hope the planning of the years ahead will be sensible, and not just a matter of spending so much money."

Swelled Head

For parents, too, Mrs. Haggen had a warning. Don't, she urged, "make snobs" out of children by over-emphasizing the virtues of accelerated classes with their enriched programs.

"The slow learner," said she, "and this observer couldn't agree more heartily... shouldn't be tormented and humiliated by being used as a social status symbol."

That's it, except for a suggestion to Sacred Ralph Loffmark. Please, please, give us lesser brains a break. Say it plain, like Lois Haggen does.

FIDEL PLANTS KISS ON BARRY

HAVANA (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba said early today that he is "rooting for" Senator Barry Goldwater in the U.S. presidential race this year "because I believe he will lose votes that way." He said he "was even ready" to send a contribution.

Popular Sportsman Killed In Pat Bay Highway Crash

Thrown From Car At Intersection

A leading Vancouver Island amateur sportsman was killed instantly this morning in a two-car collision at Weiler Road and Pat Bay Highway, just south of Sidney.

Rom Knott, 57, of 913 Sluggert Road, Brentwood, was thrown from his small car after it was struck broadside by a station wagon.

He was pronounced dead at Rest Haven Hospital. He sustained head and leg injuries.

Sidney RCMP said Mr. Knott was proceeding west along Weiler when the accident occurred. He stopped for the stop sign at Pat Bay Highway and then drove across the road, police said a witness told them.

As he did so his car was hit by a station wagon driven south on Pat Bay by Robert Dunlop, 11307 Chale Road, Deep Cove. Mr. Knott's car hit a stop sign and grazed a car that had stopped on Weiler, east of the highway.

ROM KNOTT... he'll be missed

Castro Offers Compensation; U.S. Excluded

HAVANA (Reuters)—Premier Fidel Castro has excluded the United States from an offer to compensate countries whose properties in Cuba have been nationalized.

The Cuban leader told reporters early today Cuba is willing to pay compensation for foreign properties nationalized by the Cuban government providing the nations concerned pursue a "correct trade policy" towards Cuba.

Britain is following such a policy, he declared, and therefore Cuba is willing to pay indemnification for property of the British-owned Shell Oil Company confiscated after the Cuban revolution in January, 1959.

"The U.S. government 'does not follow a friendly trade policy toward Cuba.'"

INCIDENTS CLOSED

Castro said he regarded the incident of the Cuban fishermen seized Feb. 2 for violating U.S. territorial waters and his subsequent decision to shut off the water supply of the American naval base at Guantanamo as closed.

He reiterated Cuba's willingness to resume the water supply, but said the U.S. would first have to indicate it wanted the water turned on again.

"The U.S. government is not expected to take up Castro's offer."

Malaysia Truce Talks End in Disagreement

Times News Service

BANGKOK, Thailand—The three-nation foreign ministers' conference on Malaysia broke up in disagreement today.

A few hours later, Malaysia announced it no longer considers the cease-fire arrangement on Borneo to be in effect.

The second round of talks at the foreign ministers' level had been underway here among Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines. But they collapsed when Malaysia demanded that Indonesia withdraw an estimated 400 guerrillas from the Borneo jungles before political discussions started.

Malaysia's decision on the cease-fire cancelled the arrangement worked out by U.S. Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy to stave off war between Malaysia and Indonesia.

Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman announced tonight the Malaysian government now will take its case to the United Nations.

U.S. CANCELS FLEET VISIT

ATHENS (AP)—More anti-American demonstrations flared in Greece today and the U.S. Embassy announced that a visit to Athens Thursday by ships of the U.S. Sixth Fleet has been cancelled.

An embassy spokesman said the cancellation was requested by the Greek government.

Anti-American and anti-British sentiment has been running high in Greece over the Cyprus issue.

Cyprus Force Agreed

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Secretary-General U Thant has formally asked Canada to supply a troop contingent for the planned United Nations peace-keeping force in Cyprus, a UN spokesman announced today.

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations Security Council voted unanimously today to have UN Secretary-General U Thant set up a Cyprus peace force and to name a mediator to seek peace in the island republic.

The Soviet Union cleared the way for the solid vote when it announced it would support the plan despite strong reservations on the provisions for the creation and control of the force.

There also had been some doubt about France's vote, but the French delegate, Roger Seydoux, went along with the others.

Just before the vote the secretary-general told the 11-nation council he was confident he would be able to form the force and that he would get the full co-operation of Cyprus, Britain, Turkey and Greece in the UN peace efforts.

The Soviet position was disclosed by Ambassador Nikolai N. Fedorenko at the opening of the council session.

Fedorenko objected to a provision that the secretary-general would decide on the composition of the proposed force in consultation with Cyprus, Britain, Greece and Turkey. This, he said, would circumvent the Security Council. He also objected to a provision making the commander of the force accountable to the secretary-general and not the council.

SEEKS SEPARATE VOTE

He asked for a separate vote on this whole section of the resolution and stated that he would abstain on it. He declared, however, that in view of the fact that the resolution was acceptable to Cyprus, he would vote for the proposal as a whole.

FRANCE ABSTAINS

On the controversial paragraph on procedure for setting up the UN force, France and Czechoslovakia abstained along with the Soviet Union. The other eight voted for it. These were the United States, Britain, Nationalist China and the five sponsors of the resolution—Brazil, Bolivia, Morocco, Ivory Coast and Norway.

SILENT BUT GRAPHIC STORY of tragedy which took life of lighthouse keeper James Heanski was found by Times news team which visited Prevost Island via chartered Fleet Boat today. Body was

PREVOST ISLAND

Light-Keeper Dies in Blaze

Lighthouse keeper James Heanski, 63, died in a fire which destroyed the residence at Portlock Light on Prevost Island Tuesday night.

The fire consumed the two-story frame house in a matter of minutes.

Prevost Island is near the western entrance to Active Pass in the Gulf Islands.

Cause of the fire was being probed today by RCMP from Ganges Harbor, and Department of Transport officials.

One theory is that Mr. Heanski had a heart seizure and knocked over a lamp. Another is that a fuel oil tank exploded.

An eyewitness at Port Washington, on North Pender Island directly east of Prevost Island, Mrs. Virginia Shirley, said there was a "terrific explosion" at about 9:15.

"At first I thought there had been an earthquake," she said. "I rushed out and looked across the water, and saw there was a fierce blaze at Portlock Light."

Mr. Heanski is survived by the widow, Marion, at their Victoria home, 1377 Hillside. Mrs. Heanski was in Victoria at the time of the fire.

Funeral arrangements will be announced.

Mr. Heanski was a printer with the Colonist Commercial Printers for many years. After the Second World War, he moved to Tacoma, where he had relatives. He returned to Victoria and joined the Department of Transport lighthouse service in 1957. His first assignment was Fiddle Reef in Oak Bay—since changed to an unintended briefly at Race Rocks. He took up the Portlock assignment in 1960.

Indians Win Treaty Fight

NANAIMO (CP)—Vancouver Island Indians have the right to hunt and fish over unoccupied land, Judge A. J. H. Swensky ruled today.

He granted the appeal of Indians Clifford White and John Bob of Nanaimo from a conviction in Nanaimo magistrate's court of shooting game out of season.

Judge Swensky said in county court the vested rights of the Indian have never been taken away.

"I hold that the agreement between Vancouver Island Indians and the crown was a solemn document with all the status of a settlement or contract."

What was that old sayin' about Hoffa?

Fire Witness:

'FERRIES COULD ONLY STAND BY'

Many Victorians had a grand stand view of a spectacular fire on Prevost Island Tuesday night in which a lighthouse keeper died. They were on board the government ferry Queen of Esquimalt which hove to when the blaze was noticed. One of them was Times publisher Stuart Keale. This is his story:

By STUART KEALE

In the best traditions of the sea, four ships hove to off Portlock light last night to offer assistance—but there was little they could do.

By 9:50 p.m. it was obvious that the light-keeper's house was doomed.

The inner struts and beams of the home could be seen blazing furiously.

LIGHTS SWEEP ROCK

Ships' searchlights swept the rocky headland and the adjacent forests. Passengers aboard our ship moved out of comfortable saloons into the chill night air to observe the fiery spectacle.

By 10 p.m., the flames were rising 20 feet or more in the sky.

Somebody murmured: "There's no fire-fighting equipment there; no water."

So all we could do was watch.

HOFFA GUILTY IN 'FIX'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters union, was convicted today on two charges of seeking to fix the jury which tried him on a conspiracy charge in 1962.

The jury acquitted him on a third charge.

Also convicted were three men on trial with him—Ewing King and Thomas E. Parks of Nashville and Larry Campbell of Detroit.

Hoffa sat motionless, his face a grim mask, as jury foreman Hal W. Bullen of Chattanooga read the verdict. It was his first conviction in five federal trials dating back to 1957.

Ruby Sat With Fixed Stare On Hearing of JFK Death

DALLAS (AP)—A pretty secretary testified today Jack Ruby sat with a fixed stare for two minutes shortly after the news broke that President Kennedy had been assassinated in Dallas.

The witness, Georgia Maynor, said in answer to defence questions that his appearance and action were remarkable and sufficiently unusual to draw her attention.

She is a secretary in the advertising department of The Dallas Morning News. Co-workers said they noted very little, if any, change in Ruby when he heard the news. He was in the office composing an advertisement.

Ruby is charged with slaying Lee Harvey Oswald, accused as the assassin of Kennedy. The defence sought to support by questioning its contention that the slaying of the president shocked Ruby into a mental blackout during which he killed Oswald.

The state seeks to prove that Ruby's actions were normal.

John Newnam, a retail advertising salesman for the newspaper, told of finding Ruby at his desk when he returned to his office shortly after noon Nov. 22.

Newnam told how, upon word of Kennedy's assassination, those in his office rushed for a small television set. Among them was Ruby.

"Was there anything unusual about his behavior?" Newnam was asked by the prosecution.

"No more unusual than anyone else," he replied.

Hope th' man who forecast wet snow is all wet.

Well, Daggs nab it if it doesn't look like we might have a winner hidin' in th' Briar patch.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

They had an unusual item on the lunch-time menu at Eaton's restaurant Tuesday:

Grilled Filet of Soul.

This upset some of the diners and one of them spoke to a waitress about it. The manager came over and apologized and all of the mimeographed copies of the menu were withdrawn for correction.

Donald MacMillan, 1148 Esquimalt Road, will finally get a sidewalk in front of his corner lot after two years of trying, but he'll have to foot the bill.

He has petitioned Esquimalt council twice to have the sidewalk built, but other residents in the 1100 block have petitioned against the move.

His will be the only piece of property in the block with a cement sidewalk.

He told council it was "impossible" to keep his boulevard decent because it is always being trampled by children on their way to Esquimalt Sports Centre across the street.

He said he would gladly pay $135 for 65 feet of sidewalk "because you don't have to cut, trim, or fertilize cement."

When Oak Bay council decided it was time to come out of the committee of the whole and conduct its affairs in public, it meant business.

Latest step in this direction is installation of microphones and tape recorders in the outside chamber.

Randolph Burgoyne of Mount Douglas High and Steve Bigsby of Oak Bay High have been named local winners in Time Magazine's high school current affairs contest.

Jack MacDonald, Jack Sommers, Dorothy Dale and John Blüchle were also among high-scoring students at Oak Bay.

Top scorers will receive a world globe or a book prize. Test consisted of 105 questions on national and foreign affairs and other categories such as business, sports, science and religion.

Even in this day and age, some people are still scornful of such things as subconscious disorders of the mind, repressions and complexes.

After viewing the screen biography of Dr. Sigmund Freud in the Royal Theatre Tuesday, a man exclaimed: "They're all a bunch of nuts!"

If you're wondering what Charles Bendall is doing these days, he's surfing in Australia.

Mr. Bendall, a retired squadron leader in the RCAF, left Canada for "Down Under" 14 years ago.

He and his wife, Marg, spend much of their time surfing. They were recently honored by a two-page spread in the Australian magazine "Boardrider" and dubbed "the grandmammy and grandpappy of all boardriders." (They are grandparents, and they're both over 50).

Charles is the brother of Fred Bendall, 512 Fraser Street.

FERRIES WIRE BRIEFS

There was no sign of life ashore.

Curiously, the red lighthouse stood off on a point, in front of the lighthouse, blinking in the night as if to call attention to something much larger and more dramatic than itself.

The Esquimalt's engines seemed to drift to a halt at about 9:45 p.m.

A voice came over the ship's speaker: "If there is a doctor aboard, please report to the ship's steward."

This puzzled us. Why had the ship stopped?

SPOTTED FIRE

Then, looking forward on the port beam, we spotted the fire.

We assumed that somebody was being taken off Prevost Island and might need treatment for exposure.

As our ship manoeuvred—very expertly—the Portlock light and fire turned up on our starboard beam.

MOVED CLOSE

We admired the way in which a smaller ship—the Queen of the Islands—moved in close to shore to light up the area and offer aid to survivors.

But apparently there were none.

And no passenger came forward to say: "I'm the doctor."

By the time we landed at Swartz Bay the light-keeper's house was a tiny, smouldering glow.

Hoffa could receive a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a fine of $10,000. The others could receive up to five years and $5,000 each.

Hoffa, Parks and Campbell were convicted of offering a $10,000 bribe to the son of a Negro juror in the 1962 trial.

Campbell is business agent for the Detroit Teamsters local, of which Hoffa is president. Parks, a handyman, is Campbell's uncle. Both Campbell and Parks are Negroes.

Hoffa and King, former Nashville Teamsters president, were convicted of offering a promotion in the Tennessee highway patrol to a state trooper whose wife was on the Nashville jury.

The jurors acquitted Hoffa on a charge in which has been accused of aiding and abetting two businessmen in trying to rig the jury. The businessmen, Nicholas Tweel of Huntington, W.Va., and Allen Dorfman of Chicago, also were acquitted.

The jury deliberated a total of five hours and 40 minutes, after receiving the case Tuesday night.

NDP Fights On Alone Against Columbia Pact

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Approval of the Canada-U.S. Columbia River treaty appears assured in this session of parliament, but not before a tough and bitter fight.

Battle lines on the issue were drawn in the Commons Tuesday as debate opened on a government resolution referring the treaty and its revisions to the House external affairs committee for study.

The official Conservative opposition indicated a qualified support of the treaty and the 11-man Social Credit group pledged its full support—more than enough voting power to assure the minority Liberal government of treaty approval.

But a promise that the treaty would not get through without an extended battle was hurled at the government by New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas.

GREAT BETRAYAL
"We will do everything in our power," declared Mr. Douglas Tuesday night, "to prevent this parliament giving its assent to what we consider a great betrayal of the interests of the people of B.C. and of Canada."

He charged that the treaty was "conceived in avarice and born in apathy," that "sharp Yankee traders took our naive and inexperienced Canadian negotiators for suckers."

"This treaty and this protocol," Mr. Douglas asserted, "means that we are selling our birthright for a mess of pottage, largely to satisfy the vanity of a provincial premier and to meet the needs of a power-hungry and water-hungry neighbor to the south."

Mr. Douglas seemed to be giving support to earlier threats by H. W. Hurd (NDP-Kootenay West) that the 17-member NDP group in the house might launch a filibuster in an attempt to defeat the treaty.

OCT. 1 TARGET
Observers here believe such filibustering tactics—in both the committee and later in the House when the government introduces a resolution asking final approval of the treaty—could considerably delay treaty ratification. But there is no conviction that a filibuster could delay ratification beyond the Oct. 1 deadline set by the government.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who led the Canadian negotiators who obtained U.S. agreement to treaty modifications, opened the debate Tuesday with an appeal for speedy parliamentary approval of the pact.

Speaking in the debate for the Conservative party, Stuart Fleming (Okanagan-Revelstoke) said his party doesn't intend "to obstruct or hinder the passage of the treaty through the committee, but we do reserve the right, and will use the right, to scrutinize all the terms of the agreement, particularly the protocol, with the greatest care."

BLASTS GRITS
They he blasted the Liberals for having "stalled" Columbia development when they were in office prior to 1957; for having contributed, while they were in opposition, to the breakdown in agreement between the then Conservative government and the B.C. government; and for having "vilified" the Conservatives and their treaty, then, on achieving office, turning about and endorsing substantially the same treaty.

The only change in principle, he said, was adoption by the Liberals of the B.C. government's proposal that B.C.'s share of downstream power benefits be sold in the U.S.

The reason for this, he said,

was that Premier Bennett was going ahead with Peace River development first.

"I think the people of B.C. are entitled to know whether they are going to get the Peace River power," Mr. Fleming stated, which is supposed to make these downstream power benefits surplus, at the same cost as the downstream benefits.

"Or are they going to be asked to pay 10, 12 or 14 mills for it?"

THOROUGHLY BAD

NDP leader Douglas said the treaty was "a thoroughly bad treaty."

"As someone has said, this treaty is very much like an old hag putting on lipstick and rouge, not so much to enhance her beauty but to hide her ugliness," he said.

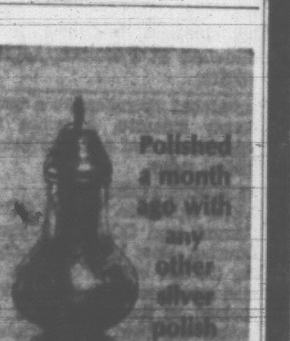

Mr. Douglas also flayed the Liberals. During the last two federal election campaigns, he said, they were saying the treaty was a "sell-out, the export of jobs and a betrayal to the interests of the United States."

Now, overnight, it has become a good treaty," he scoffed.

"I want to tell the house that if we are so forgetful of our duty as to ratify this treaty, the day will come in Canada when generations not very far distant from today will curse the day that the Parliament of Canada gave away this great heritage of the Canadian people."

Is So, Is So, Is So Bigger!

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

The fiscal fisticuffs of the century are being fought along the Great Divide.

It's Social Credit British Columbia versus Social Credit Alberta.

The weapons: budgets at 50 paces.

Day by day the great feud deepens as missiles fly across the Rocky Mountains between Edmonton and Victoria.

It started last Friday when Alberta Treasurer E. W. Hinman had the temerity to claim his budget is bigger than B.C.'s.

It is $414,000,000, compared to $395,593,483 for B.C.

Premier W. A. G. Bennett, B.C.'s finance minister, hit back on Monday. B.C.'s budget would be millions more than Alberta's if the same accounting methods were used, he said, including federal assistance.

Ouch.

On Tuesday, Mr. Hinman threw the book back at Mr. Bennett.

Alberta's budget does not include federal aid, he declared.

What's more—if Alberta included money raised under its education foundation program, it would be $74,000,000 higher.

Ow.

Premier Bennett rose to the challenge like a Pacific salmon.

He rushed to the Press Gallery with his third explanation.

You guessed: B.C.'s budget is so, is so, is so BIGGER.

He flashed a memorandum from his finance department advisers which says:

"On a comparable basis the budget of B.C. for 1964-65 is $508,000,000."

That's $94,000,000—count it—more than the original Alberta claim, and $20,000,000 above the latest salvo from Edmonton.

What's more, Mr. Bennett's advisers told him, B.C.'s per capita spending is $296 compared to $287 for Alberta.

So there.

The finance memo states: "B.C.'s budget is presented to the House as the amount financed directly from taxation and fees and is net of federal contributions to jointly shared programs such as hospital insurance, social welfare, health, etc., as well as being net of employee contributions to superannuation funds and net of rural school advances as offset by rural school taxes paid."

Take that!

But there's more: "On the other hand, Alberta includes in revenue or income account federal contributions to hospital insurance, social welfare, health grants, receipts from municipalities on behalf of hospital insurance and employees' contributions to superannuation funds."

The final punch: "These views have been confirmed by the uniform accounting used by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and from authoritative sources in the Province of Alberta."

What do you have to say to that Mr. Hinman?

'Air Canada' New TCAName

OTTAWA (CP)—Trans-Canada Air Lines got a new and bilingual name Tuesday—Air Canada.

In an unexpected development, a private member's bill sponsored by Jean Chretien (L.-St. Maurice-Lafleche) to change the name of the publicly-owned airline flew through the Commons in 40 minutes with all-party support.

Whether the new name will stick depends on Senate approval of the bill, which seems likely in view of government backing. Actual timing of the name change will depend on TCA and the cabinet.

Mr. Chretien, a freshman MP and 30-year-old lawyer from Shawinigan, Que., said outside the Commons the new name probably would not become official for about one year. This would allow TCA ample time to make all necessary adjustments.

$1,000 A WEEK FOR 'HOOKS'

TORONTO (CP)—A good pickpocket can pull in $32,000, tax-free, in an average year in Metropolitan Toronto, say two Metro police detectives. In an article in the first issue of the Ontario Magistrates' Quarterly, pickpocket squad detectives Edwin Barkley and Donald Pogue write that "hooks" in their jurisdiction pick-up an average of $1,000 a week. On pay nights they average about $50 a victim.

Honorary Seat for Winnie?

LONDON (CP)—The suggestion is advanced that Sir Winston Churchill, a House of Commons man to the core of his being, should be made an honorary member of the mother of parliaments.

This would enable him to attend Commons sittings, as he has been doing with surprising regularity even though he will be 90 Nov. 30.

Sir Winston will not stand at the next election—which must be held before November—and therefore would no longer be eligible to take his place in the Commons at question time.

The Manchester Guardian suggests some gesture would be fitting.

"Many are suggesting that the 'greatest Commoner of all time' deserves some special tribute," says the paper, suggesting Sir Winston be given the privilege of attending still.

Civic Theatre Job Awarded

City council Tuesday authorized $31,721 extra borrowing to permit the award of McPherson Playhouse contract to R. H. Hall Ltd.

The Victoria firm will build and reconstruct the old Pantages Theatre as a major feature of Centennial Square. The bid is for $373,191.

It was low bid of three. The others were $373,387 by G. H. Wheaton Ltd., and $373,366 by Farmer Construction Ltd.

Original theatre budget by the square committee was for $375,000. This was to be taken from the more than $2,000,000 left by the late Mr. McPherson to the city, and permission to borrow $350,000 against this was granted by the provincial government.

Now the city seeks permission to increase this borrowing to $500,000 until the estate is finally disbursed in 1967. The additional borrowing would include the $31,721 authorized Tuesday.

Ald. M. H. Mooney questioned the "wisdom of borrowing on the estate. We are treading very thin ice."

He said he supports the theatre project, especially since it is under way.

"We must carry on a venture we have started. But we are borrowing money every time we turn around. Will we go on this way?"

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the money could be raised through the mill rate, as an alternative, but this would be a less popular move.

He noted that with award of the theatre contract the majority of contracts are now let for the first phase of square construction.

"The taxpayer wouldn't want us to stint on a few dollars and spoil it for years to come," Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow remarked.

"The end result of the theatre is even more desirable than first conceived," the mayor noted.

"We want the best, now that we have started, but we also must be careful," Ald. Mooney said.

FLUORIDES PITCH SURPRISES PM

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson was apparently taken aback in the Commons Tuesday when he was asked to endorse publicly fluoridation of water supplies to reduce tooth decay.

Josepy Slogan (PC—Springfield), a dentist, asked for Mr. Pearson's support of fluoridation in view of its endorsement by the last four U.S. presidents.

Mr. Pearson said no useful purpose would be served by any statement by him. He added that the matter was so important he couldn't deal with it during the Commons question period.

Biggest But Not Best

ALL WHO DEPLORE HIGH taxes yet urge "the government" to do more and more for them should give heed to the significance of the figures released yesterday by Finance Minister Gordon. He disclosed the total of expenditures planned by the federal government for the 1964-65 fiscal year — and it comes to more than $7.5 billions, the largest in our history. Nor is this all. According to custom, this amount will be swelled by further expenditures to be made during the year, so that the eventual total could be very close to $8 billions.

Deducting the $882 millions which will be allotted to the old-age pensions from specified tax sources, there is a total of about $6.7 billions to be raised mainly by federal tax revenues. The amount by which tax levies fall short of this will be the amount of the deficit which will be added to the long series of deficits the country has been carrying. Mr. Gordon has already said there will be no surplus in his forthcoming budget — expected within the next month or so. In fact, he has even said that a deficit would be fine with him. There are times, according to the Keynesian theory of economics, when a national deficit is a usable tool of control, enabling a government to spend beyond its means to stimulate the economy while leaving large purchasing power in the hands of the public.

But Canada is not in that position at the moment. We have had years of deficits because the government is spending more and more on demanded welfare programs while still facing huge requirements for defence, public works and other national undertakings. Deficits mean debts, and the interest charges on Canada's national debt have become a major item of our annual costs.

There have been some sizeable cuts in defence costs, which still, however, remain the largest item. No doubt there will be more in this department. But there must be further implementation of recommended savings in all areas of government. That will be the test of Mr. Gordon's next budget.

He cannot appreciably raise taxes without slowing down the economy, particularly in the face of the large tax reductions now beginning in the United States. Yet he cannot continue indefinitely with huge deficits, for deficits also mean inflation — they represent money spent without a corresponding increase in production. And inflation is an invisible but very real deduction from every pay cheque, insurance policy, annuity and pension.

Only One Possible Answer

THE PROJECTED VISIT OF the Queen of Canada to our country can be cancelled in only one way — if Her Majesty personally indicates that she does not wish to come.

Canada cannot possibly withdraw its invitation on the ground that we are unable to guarantee the life and safety of the Sovereign in her own territory. To do so would be to admit that we are not fit to govern ourselves; that, indeed, we cannot claim responsible nationhood.

The responsible people of Quebec ought to be the first to see this, and the first to denounce and eliminate the ridiculous resort to violence and the threat of violence which has been all too prevalent in recent events in that province. Surely they recognize that harm or insult offered to the Queen would so arouse all the rest of the country that hopes of a so-called "new deal" for Quebec would be set back a generation. Ninety per cent of those whom Quebec separatists are accusing of discrimination have no idea what all the fuss is about, why French-Canadians don't feel they are treated with equality, or why anybody would wish to deprive them of any rights.

The current bicultural commission should do much to get facts from all parts of the country, sort them out and present a clear picture of the situation. In the meantime, however, violence — particularly directed at the Queen — will arouse only contempt and opposition from the rest of Canada. It is time for the people of Quebec to dispel the shabby picture of their province that is being presented to the country by those who have neither the best interests of Canada nor of Quebec at heart.

Competition—More Or Less

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE formation of a new organization of general insurance companies operating in Canada for the purpose of bringing about "on a voluntary basis, a more orderly market place in the interests of policy holders and a reasonable underwriting profit," has just been made in Toronto.

According to this organization, general insurance companies in this country will show an underwriting loss for 1963 of between $75 million and $100 million. This has come about, it is suggested, because strong competition for business has kept premiums at unrealistic levels while at the same time claims have been heavy.

The suggestion is, of course, that through "voluntary" action, the participating companies will ease up on the competition and allow premium rates to rise to a more realistic level.

Just how this can be done without inviting the attention of the Justice Department's combines act investigators will be interesting to see. Certainly motorists, who have seen their insurance rates increase considerably almost every year, will have cause to complain if the increases are augmented by any artificial restraints on competition in the industry.

It seems strange, somehow, that competition can be such a bad thing as some businessmen make out when it is at the same time the basis of successful operation of the free enterprise system.

Angus MacInnis

THE RESPECT AND ADMIRATION expressed by spokesmen for all parties in British Columbia's legislature probably defined as well as anything could the breadth of the esteem in which the late Angus MacInnis was held by Canadians. He died in Vancouver on Monday.

A co-worker with the late J. S. Woodsworth, sometimes called "the saint in politics," Mr. MacInnis had helped to found the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and brought to it the ideals exemplified by his leader, the man who became his father-in-law.

Ill-health had long been a trial to the veteran member of the House of Commons, and had curtailed the public life of the man whose humanitarian instincts were a significant part of a distinguished career.

It is a mark of his stature that tributes to his memory should flow from political friend and opponent alike.

Gallant Rescues

THE SPECTACULAR RESCUE of Greek sailors from their broken tanker off Nova Scotia by skilful and daring men of HMCS Athabaskan has added a touch of gallantry and cheerfulness to the week's news.

This is a saga which lifts hearts here where close association with the navy and affairs of the sea have developed a special appreciation for such accomplishments. Here was a sample of seamanship, personal courage and over-riding concern for those in distress. The officers and men of the Athabaskan rose to the occasion magnificently, fulfilled the tradition of their service and earned the cheers not only of Canadians but of all who respect achievements of this nature.

By coincidence, a smaller incident on the Victoria waterfront on the same weekend disclosed a similar attitude on the part of a modest young teenager. Through his prompt action the life of a four-year-old toddler who slipped into deep water was saved.

The rescuer, having acted with efficiency, left so quietly parents of the small boy had no opportunity to thank him. He has since received an expression of parental gratitude and widespread praise for an excellent mission accomplished.

Strength in Little Albania

THE latest incident in Russia's dispute with Albania—the seizure by the Tirana government of the last remaining Soviet Embassy buildings, appears to make the breach between the two countries absolute. But Albania, the smallest and weakest of all the Communist states, and the one most dependent on material aid from the Soviet Union, manages to survive.

What is more, although her masters have defied Russia in language unprecedented for more violent and condemnatory than the language used by the Yugoslavs at the height of their quarrel with Stalin — she still maintains her links and a certain amount of trade with at least some of the East European satellites — Poland, Bulgaria, East Germany, and, most demonstratively, Rumania.

Because Albania has always been thought of as nothing but a pawn in the great Sino-Soviet dispute, very little attention has been paid to its own peculiar position. When, in November, 1960, Enver Hoxha stood up in the Kremlin and denounced Khrushchev before the assembled delegates of 81 Communist parties for betraying the memory of Stalin and the whole Communist movement, and for trying to starve Albania into submission, this was seen simply as a supporting move in the interests of China.

Apparent Whipping Boy

When, at the 22nd Party Congress in October, 1961, Khrushchev publicly attacked the Albanian leadership in equally violent terms, the world was so caught up by the implications of the Sino-Soviet dispute that for Albania it read China and did not stop to ask why on earth Albania should be in that gallery at all.

But Albania, squeezed between Greece, Yugoslavia and the sea, a tangle of mountains, primitive and wild in life and aspect, is a country in its own right. Its existence, its survival as an anti-Soviet Communist land, presents Khrushchev with problems which, at the very least, enlarge the area of dispute between Moscow and Peking and also confuse it. The Chinese know this very well and are prepared to make sacrifices to keep this tiny country, so insignificant, so far away, on its feet. So, perhaps, are other Communist parties, above all the Rumanian.

It has always been Albania's lot to act as a stalking horse in the manoeuvring of larger powers, and, at the same time, to gain from this an importance disproportionate to its size and wealth.

Kaiser Wilhelm II could dismiss it contemptuously and ask rhetorically why anyone should go to war for the sake of "the miserable goat pastures of Scutari." But the Austro-Hungarian Empire, Serbia and Italy skirmished confidently round and about this tiny stretch of land—the Italians looking for a foothold on the Eastern Adriatic, the Serbs seeking a way to the sea, the Austrians seeking to contain them both.

Temporary Affection

After the First World War she maintained her existence under King Zog, but with the triumph of the Communists in 1946, it looked as though Communist Yugoslavia and Communist Albania would work in amity. In the whole of Eastern Europe nobody more was Stalinist than Tito and Enver Hoxha.

But with Tito's defection in 1948, the Albanian position became difficult in the extreme. She had an enemy against her mountain border. Yet at the same time the presence of Russian submarines and warships in Albanian harbours was a standing threat to Tito.

Worse was to follow. No doubt the Albanians knew that before the quarrel with Tito, Stalin had cynically suggested that the Yugoslavs might just as well swallow up Albania. When Khrushchev made things up with Tito, the Albanians found to their dismay that the same line of thought might be reborn.

Khrushchev showed himself capable of consulting in secret with arch-revisionist Tito about the desirability of putting down the arch-Stalinist Rakosi of Hungary. If he could do this, he could also connive at a coup to remove Hoxha and perhaps subdue Albania to Yugoslav influence. Indeed, there is a very strong suspicion that just such a coup was in fact planned — though whether Tito was privy to it is not known.

Turbulent Mountaineers

So Hoxha has two good reasons for exalting Stalin and Stalinist methods and allying himself with China. It is only through the most rigorous repression that he can hope to control his own wild and turbulent mountaineers. For although the country is now over one-and-a-half-million strong, increasing at the rate of over 3 per cent a year, and although it is turning, with surprising rapidity from a poor agrarian land into a semi-industrialized land, it is still not an organized society as we understand the term. On the other hand, it is only with Chinese support that he can hope to stand not only against Russia but also against Yugoslavia.

Albania is more than a catspaw, however: for Khrushchev it is a trouble centre in its own right. Through this tiny country China has secured a foothold in Europe; and, as centrifugal forces make themselves increasingly felt within the European Communist bloc, relations between individual Communist countries and Albania can complicate the old stark simplicities and assume a more than symbolic importance. Thus, even now, Rumania, actively trying to play off China against Russia in its determination not to be swallowed up by Comecon, is demonstrably displaying a new-found affection for Albania, Khrushchev's bogey and Mao's first European satellite.

FROM LONDON

Britain Faces the Hard Facts of Trade

BRITAIN in 1962 imported $21 billions worth of goods more than it exported. The deficit imbalance increased seven per cent from 1959. Britain traded at a loss in both years with each of the five world trading areas used in basic statistics. The following table shows the percentage change during the four-year period in Britain's trade with each:

	Exports	Imports
	to	from
Commonwealth	-5.1	-8.4
West Europe	+48.1	+23.3
United States	-8.6	+28.6
Soviet bloc	+82.0	+36.2
Other	+12.5	+32.4

In only two areas—West Europe and the Soviet bloc—have British exports increased significantly more than imports. The increase in exports to the Soviet bloc has been particularly great, and this was before the recently heightened Eastern interest in Western trade and without special fillips like wheat deals.

It is of course unfair to give statistics in percentage terms without including the raw figures behind the percentages. The figures below, giving British exports and imports for 1962 in millions of dollars, place Anglo-Communist trade in perspective.

	Exports	Imports
	to	from
Commonwealth	$4,011	$4,503
West Europe	4,080	4,125
United States	990	1,431
Soviet bloc	333	474
Other	1,962	2,943

Communist trade is seen to represent only 3.26 per cent of Britain's huge total trade of $24.852 billions. But it is untrue to say the impressive figures of the first table are rendered insignificant by the second.

West Europe Balance

Most British trade with developed areas is with West Europe and United States. The balance is adverse with the United States, but Britain is approaching balance with West Europe. Britain in fact had a favorable trade balance in 1962 with one key part of West Europe — The European Economic Community.

It is flattering to the British to have done so well in setting to the EEC, but there is an early limit to continued fast progress in this market. As the EEC moves toward its final common tariff and unifies its economic policy, the market will be tougher to crack. This is not the important point, which is that Britain is having its greatest trade success in a market constituting, like itself, one of the world's most developed areas. It is an excellent demonstration of the greatest fear haunting world trading circles: that the rich tend increasingly to trade with the rich.

The figures showing a general drop in Commonwealth trade reflect inability of underdeveloped Commonwealth countries to compete seriously in manufactures or to benefit from sustained prices or demand for raw materials. Non-Commonwealth underdeveloped countries, if they are isolated from "other" nations in the above tables, present the same picture. They are caught in a vicious circle of failure to benefit from their exports, and lack of home demand. This in turn fixes the rich nations in an ever-tightening circle of trade for their consumer goods.

Thought for Poor

British experts believe the world is lost unless poor countries can be brought into the world trading structure. American experts realize the same thing, and so do more outward-looking elements of the EEC. What makes informed British opinion apparently different from American is simply the conviction that the Soviet bloc constitutes the biggest chunk of the underdeveloped world and thus the choicest target for a trade breakthrough.

Mr. N. A. D. Macrae, who toured the Soviet Union as an economic journalist last year, recently summed up the overwhelming view prevailing here: "I became convinced that if the Soviets can at last break through to a consumer goods society it will be a major source of relief for the world."

It is true that some nerves here are gratified by a sense of greater government interest in Communist trade than in Commonwealth trade. This is greatly exaggerated by Mr. Harold Wilson, who shares the government's desire for more Communist trade. But there is an element of truth in it stemming from despair at ever achieving the breakthrough into a goods-demanding middle class in the primitive societies of Afro-Asian underdeveloped countries.

Consumer Demands

Most Soviet bloc countries do not need to be taught to want consumer goods. The demand is there. If the West and the Communist nations can be brought into civilized-economic interplay, it is felt, East-West frictions will be greatly reduced, and, perhaps more important, both sides will be better able to help the impoverished neutrals.

Whether this attitude is starry-eyed or not, it is universal from the prime minister down. It is not a matter of just "doing business." The small size of Anglo-Soviet trade in hard figures is seen as a challenge to be met, encouraged by the percentage growth figures.

Utter, Primeval Breeding

Horrified hardly describes my feelings after spending a couple of days in your community.

My company in London, England, sent me here to build up a clientele for its high quality woollens. Instead of being well received as befits the representative of an old, established firm, trading in goods which you Canadians with your history of cheap manufacture, plus shoddy design, could not begin to compete with, I find myself repelled by your lack of respect for the superiority of things British and our traditions generally.

This has been my first sojourn in Canada and I am appalled at your lack of good taste. I was even proffered tea made from a bag immersed in warm water. What utter, primeval breeding!

The Queen's Visit

A recent leading article on the safety of the realm should encourage every Canadian to realize his moral responsibility to make it known to MPs that this throw of the dice is not for us.

The recent rebel stealing of arms in Quebec is taken by many as a designed build-up to a dangerous situation. A focal point is, of course, the forthcoming visit of the Queen and her spouse to that troubled area and the growing apprehension with which this is regarded by loyal subjects of the Crown. Difficult as it may be for the government to back down without losing face, it is better to be sure than sorry.

Half a billion people scattered throughout the world in nations large and small, as members of the Commonwealth, claim allegiance to the Crown and the person of Her Majesty. This points up the responsibility of our politicians to heed the warning of the former leader of the Quebec Republican party who is reported as saying that Her Majesty may expect to be brutally treated here. If these are the words of Dr. Marcel Chaput, whether they are treasonable or not, it is felt by many to be a sufficient sign that our safety measures might not be good enough, and safest of all is for the Queen to stay at home.

Time is not on our side since the Quebec situation grows steadily worse with the years. The loyal citizens of Quebec will not wish Her Majesty to be put to the peril of irresponsible maniacs, brave though she is; they would rather forego the honor of the visit. The remainder of us could not stand the strain of the inherent danger that Quebec became another Dallas, Texas.

CLARENCE S. GOODE,
Squad-Ldr., RAF (Retd.)

Mr. Chaput's Words

We have heard Marcel Chaput allegedly speaking for many citizens of Quebec that the Queen should be told — brutally, that she is no longer welcome in "French Canada," whatever that is. This is in fact stating that one province of Canada is trying to dictate to the other nine provinces (and the Territories) who the Parliament of Canada may and may not invite to our country.

This makes us wonder what the reaction of Mr. Chaput and his Quebec followers would be if the Pope or President de Gaulle were invited to Canada, and the provinces outside Quebec protested to such a visit and "brutally" let them know they were not welcome. This is a question that should be put to Mr. Chaput.

The time is fast drawing near when the majority of Canadians will cease to put up with being dictated to by the Quebec minority. Let them have all the privileges all of us have but the time has come to put an end to this minority dictating what the rest of us should or should not have.

It is only our political kow-towing to Quebec that stops the rest of Canada from having sane divorce laws, sensible birth control information and clinics and legalized medical abortions where justified and many other sane and progressive changes. I believe that any political party today that had the courage to enter an election with a platform of sensible legislation without looking over their shoulder at the 75 Quebec seats would be the next Parliament of Canada.

E. JOHNSON.

No Bow-Thrust Prop

The Princess Norah, now renamed Canadian-Prince, never had, and hasn't now, a "bow-thrust-propeller," whatever that may be.

What she has got is a bow rudder to assist in steering when the ship has sternway, or in other words, is proceeding backwards.

I cannot understand how such things get into print. A phone call to anyone of a thousand people would have put the matter right and readers who are not familiar with ships would not be misinformed.

They Like It Without

UNLESS you climb to the ridgepole which tops my roof, and is a good 30 feet above the ground on the sea side, you can't see Trial Island from my home. So it won't make much difference to my view if they put a transmitter, with towers there—not as long as I'm shore-based.

Stott

Just the same I have a definite sympathy for other waterfront people who look daily at the island and are indignant over plans to erect these aids to radio on the rock. Like Professor Higgins in "My Fair Lady," they've grown accustomed to her face. They don't want it marred by what they consider an improper commercial intrusion—a sort of wart on her nose.

It never occurred to me that Trial was beautiful, though I've cherished it since I was a kid from associations there over almost half a century. Even when Jack Shadbolt did the mural of it to illustrate the Cadborosaurus legend concocted by a gifted writing friend, the picture struck me as more interesting than lovely. It still seems that way to me now that it's hanging on the wall of the Victoria Press business office.

I like the picture because of the frankness with which Jack discussed it in the process of composition.

Jack explained that an artist derived satisfaction from expressing on canvas the ideas of a particular subject inspired in him. This was creation and if somebody paid for it as such, it was his right to do so. He said he would eat also.

It would take someone far more accomplished than I to define its artistic merit, but, having looked at the island continuously as a gauge to the speed of the tide when I'm fishing out there, I can recognize the masses in the mural, adapted as they are into the composition.

To what degree towers would detract from the visual appeal of the island, I don't know. But I do know that a lot of people who have made it their own by appreciation of its place in the seascape don't want the towers. I think they deserve consideration.

They are taxed on assessments that are high because they have seafront lots. They pay the extra and they have reason to expect the amenities that make the property desirable to them. I'd guess they aren't much impressed by the argument that towers are part of the march of progress. They're more likely to see them as part of the march of commercialism to higher earnings for somebody else.

In other parts of the world you can look at slag heaps that are part of the price of progress—slag heaps that now adorn what was once attractive countryside—and slag heaps that are the inevitable evidence of wealth someone took out of the ground.

Sure there's a difference between slag heaps and radio towers. But the difference, in the eyes of those who want Trial the way it is now is a matter of degree.

My attachment to the island goes back to those kid days when the Okells ran the light-house and when the rabbits they kept escaped to run wild on the island. I caught one once and enjoyed its short-lived companionship. Stan Whitwell found that they attracted mink and shot enough of the fancy fur-bearers to make his wife a cape.

Those were the days when Okell's cow used to look for greener pastures, swim the channel to Little Trial and then the longer stretch of water to the golf links. The grass was appealing there. Then Bill Grant and the Whitwell boys with Okell would collect a special little scow from its moorings off the island, take it to the times and recapture the cow. Sometimes the cow would stay on the island for a week between trips.

I remember the peacocks that bloomed on the island, the chocolate lilies, the wild strawberries, the small briar roses, tiny agates you found in the shingle and loads of bark at the tideline. A lot of what I recall is still there.

So I understand why waterfront folk want Trial to stay as it is as long as it can. I think the authorities should appreciate their sentiment too.

Defence Budget Fails to Meet Hellyer's Aim

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer's initial efforts to cut the armed forces' house-keeping costs to free more funds for purchase of new weapons and equipment seem to have been frustrated.

But, informants say, the minister has only begun to fight. Mr. Hellyer has wrung a major concession from the treasury board, the cabinet committee which decides on all federal expenditures. The concession: Any savings the defence department makes in house-keeping costs can be spent on new weapons and equipment.

Informants said Tuesday such savings aren't likely to be large, at least not immediately, but that the plan provides an incentive for the services to slice operations and maintenance costs.

TOTAL TRIMMED

The 1964-65 defence budget, presented to Parliament Tuesday, amounts to $1,525,000,000, or $100,000,000 less than that of the current fiscal year which ends March 31.

More than half this reduction—$56,000,000—is due to a slash in the equipment account. This is the exact opposite policy Mr. Hellyer was aiming at.

The department for months has been saying that the aim was to raise spending on new weapons and equipment to 20 to 25 per cent of the defence budget. The percentage in 1963-64 was 16 per cent and now it has fallen to 13.4 per cent.

The appropriations for operations and maintenance were also cut, but by a smaller amount: $39,000,000. Upkeep in 1964-65 is $1,125,000,000 compared with $204,000,000 for new equipment.

KEEP PLUGGING

Mr. Hellyer's aides said the minister is determined to keep plugging away at reductions in operations and maintenance, partly through more armed forces integration measures.

They conceded that this may be a long haul. Mr. Hellyer will present to Parliament soon a white paper outlining a 10-year defence plan.

'World Gov't Only Means Of Defence'

The answer to defence in the age of aircraft and guided missiles is world government, says Prof. C. S. Burchill of Royal Roads.

Prof. Burchill, national president of the World Federalist Movement, told the University of Victoria's peace club and political science forum that the concept of the defensible political unit has disappeared.

The logical answer is a world government based on the federal system, he said.

Certain changes in the charter and operation of the United Nations could be made for a seat of government.

Disputes between nations could be settled by a strengthened court of international justice, and a world police force of about 500,000 men could be set up.

He said it would cost far less than the world's present total military expenditure.

This "fourth level" of government, Prof. Burchill said, would mean income tax reductions and a longer life expectancy for Canadians.

NO HOPE OF FRENCH POLICY CHANGE

U.S. Digs In for De Gaulle Siege

An AP News Analysis

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials have about given up trying to analyse the motives of French President Charles de Gaulle and resigned themselves to a long period of strain and increasing tension in relations between Washington and Paris.

The latest French manoeuvre in demanding Red Chinese admission to the UN World Health Organization is but one of a series which has already created a bad split in NATO and which may be followed by other moves as yet unforeseen here.

The Washington policy for dealing with this situation seems to be, essentially, a policy of containment aimed at trying to prevent the split in the alliance from becoming worse.

It also is aimed at trying to blot the thrust of de Gaulle's diplomacy as far as it may affect the policies and attitudes of other countries in issues like the recognition of the Communist regime in China.

After news was received at the White House and state department Tuesday that France was supporting a Red Chinese seat in the World Health Organization, the state department declared that the U.S. delegation to W.H.O. had "actively and successfully opposed the challenge of the Republic of China's (Nationalist China's) credentials." It added "we will continue to do this in every UN body."

CAN'T CHANGE HIM

Officials said privately that it is impossible to try to get de Gaulle's position changed in any fundamental way.

He has embarked on a course of action sharply at variance with that which the United States would like to see develop at many points, and the view here is that as long as he controls destinies of France he intends to stick to it fully.

A little more than a month ago the French government recognized the Communist government at Peking and notified the Nationalist government on Formosa that it no longer had any reason for maintaining an embassy in Paris.

This forced the Nationalists to break relations with France and removed the last obstacle to an exchange of ambassadors between France and Red China.

De Gaulle followed recognition by calling for a solution of the problems of Southeast Asia through neutralization and has pushed this policy despite the fact that the United States has strongly opposed it as far as it applies to South Viet Nam.

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Compost to the Rescue

Ground frost was fairly general over the Victoria area during the last 10 days of February, causing the saturated soil in most gardens to "heave" considerably.

Jack

This condition, followed by the heavy rainfall on Saturday, has resulted in the loosened soil being washed away from around plants.

Especially is this true in the better drained areas where gardeners took advantage of the fine weather to catch up on the planting of trees, shrubs, fruits, and the sowing of a few early vegetable seeds.

On sloping ground the flow of surface water took loosened soil with it, and in level gardens the recently disturbed soil sank as the water passed through, leaving some plants in a pitifully high and dry state.

At times like this the compost heaps are appreciated and the experienced gardener promptly makes a mixture of compost and sand to put around the plants which have been affected.

Strawberries planted last fall have not yet made an anchoring root system and therefore require frequent mulching and pressing back into the soil over the first winter.

The primula is another plant whose roots are exposed by winter frost and rains, sometimes causing many casualties and invariably reducing the quality and quantity of flowers unless regularly checked.

Substitutes for compost are well-rotted manure, rotted to the state of a brown mold, dry soil if some was placed under cover last fall, or peat moss as a last resort.

B.C. Bank Details Disclosed Friday

Amount of capital involved in the proposed Bank of B.C. and the names of its provisional directors will be revealed Friday.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said a legal notice will be published in the Canada Gazette that the new bank will seek incorporation from Parliament.

This notice has to run four weeks before a petition can be made to Parliament.

NO DETAILS

The notice will contain no details beyond the names of provisional directors and the amount of capital involved.

The B.C. government intends to buy up to 25 per cent of the shares, and Mr. Bennett made it clear that Americans won't be able to buy any.

He was commenting on a British banker's statement that two large U.S. banks hope to enter the Canadian field through a new bank.

It will not be through the Bank of B.C., Mr. Bennett said, for the bank he is backing will be 100 per cent Canadian.

But there are two other private banks also seeking federal charters. One is the Laurentide Bank of Canada, launched ed by a Vancouver financier. The other is the Bank of Western Canada, to have head offices in Winnipeg.

"I don't think I should say what banks are involved, or what bank they are hoping to buy into but I can tell you that they are very big American banks," Maj. Harry Marley, chairman and managing director of the private London banking firm of E. H. Marley and Partners.

He was interviewed Tuesday by Vancouver.

The attitude of U.S. and British investors toward Canada is changing rapidly, Maj. Marley said.

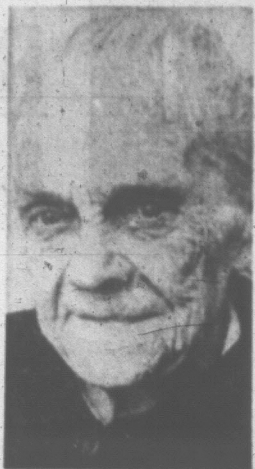

"Canada seems to have come out of her recession," he added.

Recently the First National City Bank of New York purchased a 50 per cent interest in Canada's Mercantile Bank.

Federal government officials said in Ottawa there is no firm policy on foreign ownership of Canadian banks.

However, the Bank of Western Canada proposes to limit foreign investment to 10 per cent.

If this is accepted by Parliament, it is believed similar restrictions may be demanded for the other two banks.

BIRTHDAY KISS AT 103 GIFT OF 81-YEAR WIFE

LONDON (CP)—James Burgess celebrated his 103rd birthday Tuesday and received a special kiss from his 88-year-old wife—whom he married 81 years ago.

"I love him now as much as I did all those many years ago," said Mrs. Burgess in their Dockland home.

"We are happy as doves.

"Whenever Jim gets angry with me he takes it out on his pipe. That's why we've never fallen out of our married lives. But he's had many pipes."

Jim met his bride in her father's pub, the Britannia.

"I fell for my wife when I went for a pint," he said.

"She drew my beer and I asked if I could court her."

He believes he has been a husband longer than anyone else in Britain.

OLDEST person ever to be granted Canadian citizenship is Mrs. Praskovia Doukina, 97, who treasures a letter from Prime Minister Pearson next to citizenship certificate itself. She came to Canada in 1958 to join her son Michel whom she hadn't seen in 41 years.

Salaries Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Average salaries of full-time teachers in more than 60 Canadian universities and colleges rose 2.4 per cent in the 1963-64 academic year to $8,890 compared with 1962-63, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said Tuesday.

Rezoning of 'Fun Farm' Fails But Saanich Okays Apartments

By LESLIE MILLIN
Bitter outbursts and accusations punctuated a marathon public hearing Tuesday evening into eight Saanich rezoning applications.

Nearly 200 persons wedged into Saanich council chamber, and almost all of them were against something.

Five applications were approved, one was tabled, two were rejected—and only one was unopposed.

HOLIDAY FARM

Most of the strongest language was used as council considered Saanich entrepreneur Bill Mattick's bid to extend amusement facilities at his farm under a blanket commercial amusement zoning.

Council rejected the application, but not before Reeve Stanley Murphy warned speakers: "We are rezoning land—not a man."

Speakers made a series of accusations against Mr. Mattick and his farm.

BECOME MECCA

Mrs. Thelma Stephenson told the meeting Mr. Mattick's plans would mean:

"Cordova Bay will become a mecca for all the undesirable elements looking for what they call a 'good time'."

"It is unlikely we will get adequate policing . . ."

"You (the council) want the people of Cordova Bay to give a blank cheque to this man."

Mr. Mattick, who attended the meeting, made no attempt to defend himself.

A side exchange during the Mattick debate broke out between Denis Besley, 4360 Gordon Head Road, and Coun. Hugh Curtis.

When he got up to protest Mr. Mattick's application, Mr. Besley said he is the secretary of the Saanich Voters' Association.

"I do get tired of Mr. Besley posing as the representative of an organization that no longer meets," said Coun. Curtis.

REPLY STIFLED

Mr. Besley's reply was stifled by Reeve Murphy as remote from the subject of the hearing.

Council decided Mr. Mattick should bring additions to his farm—a skating rink, a driving range and a drive-in restaurant are some of his propositions—up for public hearing one by one.

"It's obvious people here don't oppose all the additions," said Reeve Murphy.

TOO BIG A PILL

"It's just a little too big a pill to swallow all at once," commented Coun. Joseph Casey.

First half of the lengthy meeting was eaten up by four applications to rezone for apartments in the Shelbourne area, near Cedar Hill Cross Road.

All four applications were approved, in the teeth of opposition by about 60 residents of the area.

Led by spokesmen J. S. Caldwell and Frank Copp, the residents claimed apartment development will devalue property, overcrowd schools and overtax the ability of roads to handle traffic.

UVIC GROWTH

"We urge you to accept your responsibility as councillors and defeat the rezonings," the councillors were told.

Developers pointed out the nearby university development will create a need for apartments in the vicinity so great that $12,000,000 worth of units must be built.

P. V. R. Bailey, applicant on two of the rezonings, reminded the meeting that if this apartment development has to locate in Oak Bay, Saanich "will inherit all the traffic and have no way to pay for better roads".

COVER CREEK

Rezoning on two lots verging on Bowker Creek stipulated the creek must be covered.

Turned down at Tuesday night's hearing was an application for rezoning to light industrial use of a lot on Ardersier, between Tennyson and Whittier.

Residents of that area appeared in force to protest, led by R. L. Flint, 3327 Whittier.

OWNERS DISAGREE

Original plans called for the entire area bounded by Cadillac, Douglas, Crease and Harriet to be moved back, but property owners disagreed about the rezoning.

Tabled was an application that would allow another house on the 1.6-acre property at 3970 Helen.

The owner wants to expand, but the council tabled the application when it was pointed out granting it would involve abrogating one of the municipality's bylaws.

Banks Trial Delayed

MONTREAL (CP)—The preliminary hearing of Hal C. Banks, president of the Seafarers International Union of Canada, and 13 other SIO officials on charges of conspiracy was postponed Tuesday to April 6.

Teach Italian Somewhere!

By AB KENT
A Scottish-Canadian appealed to Scandinavian-bred Education Minister Leslie Peterson Tuesday on behalf of B.C. Italians to preserve the mother tongue of The Boot.
Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said in debate on the minister's salary estimate in the legislature that Canadians of Italian origin are in danger of losing their language.
"I hope the minister will make sure Italian is taught somewhere in B.C. in the high schools," Mr. Macdonald said.

Parents of Italian origin feel strongly about their language, he said.
"Without the opportunity for their children to study Italian their children will lose their native tongue, just as my own family lost Gaelic."
The member suggested Vancouver East, Vancouver Centre, Nanaimo and Trail as suitable places for courses in Italian. Not only Italian-Canadians but others as well want to learn "one of the great languages of the world," Mr. Macdonald suggested.

ISLAND DIGEST

V.I. ROUNDUP

Lumber Exports Boosted Sharply

CHEMAINUS — Lumber exports from Chemainus and Crofton ports during February amounted to 21,795,000 board feet, a sharp increase over last February's 13,582,000 board feet.
Customers were: United States, 8,163,000 board feet; Japan, 8,016,000; United Kingdom, 3,539,000; Portuguese East Africa, 1,944,000; and South Africa, 128,000.
Pulp exports also increased during last month with a total of 10,361 tons, compared to 7,183 tons for the same period last year, and 3,154 tons during January, 1964.

DUNCAN — Civil Defence certificates have been presented to nine candidates who attended an auxiliary RCMP first aid training course.
Auxiliary police are trained by personnel of the Duncan RCMP detachment.
Candidates were examined by Dr. H. S. Lewis and Mrs. M. Langlois, R.N.
They were Garry Griffiths, Roger Hilliard, Jack Prasloski, Jack Hagerman, Fred Walker, John Ellis, Ross Hamilton, Ross Walker and John Roome.

DUNCAN — Denis Hogan has been appointed chairman of the newly-formed North Cowichan parks and recreation commission.
The commission was formed to promote recreation facilities and to act as a liaison between the City of Duncan and North Cowichan Municipality.
It will hold its first meeting on March 26.
Other members appointed to the commission by Reeve Donald Morton of North Cowichan are: James Lawson, manager of McMillan, Bloedel & Powell River sawmill at Chemainus; Jack Gallanger, B.C. Forest Products' personnel director; Gerry Smith, North Cowichan councillor; Ivan Beggs, Chemainus Community Centre president; Bob Evans, Cowichan Basketball Association president; and Jim Thompson of Crofton.

LAKE COWICHAN — Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes Tuesday visited the site of the Jan. 21 fire which destroyed part of the $500,000 Cowichan Secondary School.
He also visited the emergency classes in churches and halls where 400 students have been accommodated.
The lieutenant-governor's party was welcomed by Lake Cowichan village commission chairman Mrs. M. Child and Harry Hobson, acting-chairman of the Lake Cowichan school board.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.
If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Advt.

GRIT FIGHTS MILL SMELLS

Government enforcement of air-pollution controls was advocated Tuesday by Liberal leader Ray Perrault.
He protested about smelly kraft-mills during debate on Trade Minister Robert Bonner's estimates in the legislature.
Mr. Bonner replied that there is a continuing study of the problem by the B.C. Research Council, and exchanges have been made with Sweden. The trouble has been, he said, that B.C.'s solutions seem to work in Sweden but not here.

INEQUITABLE
A brief submitted by the truck loggers said the association opposes tree farm licences as an inequitable method of providing large companies with assured timber supplies.
It also questioned the advisability of granting any pulpwood harvesting licences "until more is known regarding their possible effect on established logging operations."

The association asked for creation of a new royal commission on forestry—the last was in 1956—and suggested forest policy and administration should be more clearly separated.
The brief was presented by George MacBryer, chairman of the association's forestry and legislation committee.

TWO NIGHTS IN SNOWSTORM FOR SEA VICTIM

Vitamin Pills His Only Food

A bottle of vitamin pills and a box of matches were the only "comforts" a Vancouver man had while stranded two days on an isolated island near Tofino.

William Young, a Vancouver catering contractor, also had to endure the frustration of having his screams for help ignored by nearby boom men.
Mr. Young was returning Saturday from a business trip to a logging camp at Bedwell Harbor when his 24-foot power boat hit a deadhead in Cypress Bay, 20 miles north of Tofino.

RAN ASHORE
Before the boat sank he managed to run it ashore and crawl onto an isolated island.

Mr. Young's wife, who visited him Tuesday in Tofino Hospital, said he started two fires Saturday night but they were soon put out by heavy snow.

His only nourishment was a bottle of vitamin pills. She said her husband heard boom men working near the island but they ignored his call for help.

"He yelled and screamed and heard a voice say: 'there's someone shouting for help.' I wish they would shut up. My husband is rather annoyed that they didn't investigate."

On Monday he was picked up by the Tofino lifeboat stranding.

ding a log he was trying to paddle from the small island to Vancouver Island.
He was still dressed in his suit, tie and hat and had a briefcase and suitcase tied to the log.

His wife said he'd built a shelter out of wood on the island.

"He also found three big logs, lashed them together with kelp and built a good raft. Unfortunately he dozed off and lost his raft."

Mrs. Young said her husband said he seemed to be paddling around in circles when he took to the log.

The search started when Mrs. Young reported Sunday he had failed to meet her.

This we change.

This we don't.

Now you can see for yourself where we make most of our changes. Way down deep. Every part you can see (and every part you can't see) has been changed again and again and again. As a matter of fact, there are only six parts left from the original VW.
But we never change the VW without a reason. And the only reason is to make it even better. When we do make a change, we try to make the new part fit older models, too.

So you'll find that many VW parts are interchangeable from one year to the next.
Which is why it's actually easier to get parts for a VW than for many domestic cars. And why VW service is as good as it is. The same principle holds good for the beetle shape.
We made the rear window bigger one year so you could see other people better.

And made the tail lights bigger so other people could see you better.
But nothing drastic. Any Volkswagen hood still fits any VW ever made. So does any fender.
And, in case you hadn't noticed, every VW still looks like every other VW.
Which may turn out to be the nicest thing of all about the car. It doesn't go in one year and out the other.

COFFIN INVESTIGATION

Police 'Drank Every Day'

QUEBEC (CP) — A former Quebec Provincial Police constable has contradicted earlier testimony by three men still on the force and said his superiors drank nearly every day during the trial of Wilbert Coffin in 1954.

Louis Synett, 38, then a traffic officer and now a hotel clerk in Gaspé, testified Tuesday that he sometimes was sent to get liquor for captains J. A. Matte and Raoul Stéris.

Capt. Matte, now a chief inspector of the QPP, is mentioned in Jacques Hébert's book "L'Accusé Coffin's Assassins".

The book helped in creation of the Quebec royal commission at which Mr. Synett testified Tuesday. Questioned by Raymond Daoust of Montreal, Mr. Hébert's lawyer, the witness said that in the cabin in Percé at which the QPP were staying, there was a picture of Coffin with a makeshift noose around it.

Beneath was the caption: "Our next hanging." Coffin was hanged Feb. 10, 1956, for shooting Richard Lindsay, 37, of Hollidaysburg, Pa. The body of Lindsay, his father Eugene, 47, and a friend, Frederick Claar, were found torn by bears in the Gaspé woods in 1953.

UN Stays In Yemen

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant reported Tuesday "very disappointing" results in efforts to isolate the Yemeni civil war, and said that if UN observation mission will remain there another two months.

HISTORY SCHOLAR Sydney Jackman, who left the Victoria public school system in 1942, returns to the city in September to become associate professor of history at University of Victoria. Dr. Jackman went to University of Washington, Harvard and Cambridge, has published three books and nearly a score of articles, for which he was made a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society.

2 Die of Meningitis

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Two young sons of an Oak Harbor couple died within four hours of each other at a hospital here Monday of acute infectious meningitis. The victims were Mark Laurence Girard, 4, and Daniel Phillip Girard, 2, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Girard. The father is attached to the Whidbey Island naval air station.

Each year, the Canadian Red Cross Enquiry Bureau processes over 6,000 enquiries from some 40 countries around the world.

MATHER:

12-Mile Limit Won't Help Our Fishermen

OTTAWA (CP) — Barry Mather (NDP-New Westminster) said in the Commons Monday that the 12-mile fishing limit to be imposed in May will not help Canadian fishermen since American fishermen likely will be exempted from the rule.

He quoted press reports from Washington to the effect that the Canadian government would recognize in perpetuity the historic rights of American fishermen inside the 12-mile limit.

"As they (United States fishermen) are the only people who are fishing there anyway, it is fairly obvious to a wide section of the fishing industry in that area that the new 12-mile fishing zone, if established under these terms, may do more harm than good to the industry and the fishermen."

He said in the Throne speech debate that the change in the fishing limit provisions is just one example of the government's "backsliding."

Another example was the watering down of the Canada Pension Plan due to the financial pressure of the provinces and the insurance companies.

Still another example was the weak plan designed to protect Canadian magazines from the unfair advantage enjoyed by American magazines that were flooding Canada.

"We find that the two major invaders in that field, Time and Reader's Digest, have been given what amounts to an historic fishing right in the publication field."

This we change.

This we don't.

In spite of its short life (12 years and 1 month), we've already found 141 ways to improve the VW 1500.

Not that you'd notice it. On the surface, you'd have to look carefully to spot the improvements.

This year we made the parking lights bigger to make the lighting brighter. And we put a handle on the front trunk to make the lifting lighter.

But apart from considerable little changes like these you can hardly tell a '62 from a '64.

Underneath it's a different story. A lot has happened. Since our debut, for 1964 we developed an optional engine. It has much extra power for a few extra dollars. Yet you can still get around 35 miles to a gallon of gas (which everybody likes).

Before the VW 1500 made its appearance, spare parts for it were already in dealer's hands, and since most of these parts fit any 1500 (regardless of its year), servicing is simple and economical.

True, the 1500 is less than 3 years old. But our Volkswagen mechanics have already had 10 years' experience. The important mechanical principles of the 1500 T's are the same as the beetle (right down to the air-cooled rear engine and independent torsion bar suspension).

So you see, while there are now two Volkswagens, underneath it all, things haven't really changed, except for the better.

More to Marriage Than (Blush) Sex

"WITHOUT THE PRINCE"
Comedy by Philip King
Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 5, 6, 7
St. Luke's Parish Hall
CURTAIN - 8:15 P.M.

There's more to marriage than sex—and it's no laughing matter, an MLA said Tuesday. (NDP-Cranbrook) lectured on marital problems.

But the legislature laughed anyway when Leo Nimsick, Mr. Nimsick was advocating a course on marriage in school.

"Young people get out of high school and they get married and they don't know what kind of problems they are getting into," he said.

School prepares children for almost every kind of problem, Mr. Nimsick said.

GREATEST PROBLEM
"But the greatest problem in life we do nothing at all about, we leave them to find out for themselves."

"On behalf of your wife I object," interjected Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

Mr. Nimsick said he had seen stories in the newspaper lately about sex education in schools.

"It makes you think that sex should be the be-all and end-all of marriage," he went on.

"I would put it far down on the list."

HOW TO BUDGET
A scartlet Nimsick explained to a roaring House that he meant youngsters should learn how to budget, how to keep house and get along with a family.

"Some religions are doing this now—some churches are giving marriage courses today that take two to three months to go through," he said.

"Sure it's easy to laugh."

HORSE OUT
"But when you see all the broken homes and all the difficulty in the world today something should be done—not wait until the horse is out of the barn."

The House exploded in laughter.

"I don't know what they were really laughing at," Mr. Nimsick complained.

"Something should be done earlier in life."

COMPLEX PROBLEMS
When the hubbub ceased, Mr. Peterson answered: "We're asked to have many things in school, but I don't think we could encompass quite all the things the member for Cranbrook spoke about."

He said it is possible to legislate against use of alcohol or smoking, but he didn't think the government could solve all the complex problems of modern society.

Fishing Limit Agreed
LONDON (Reuters) — The British government Tuesday announced in Parliament a new agreement on fishery limits for 13 European countries. The 15-article agreement provides for an inner six-mile belt where the coastal state would have exclusive fishing rights and an outer six-mile zone where nations that have traditionally fished would continue to do so.

OFF AGAIN is steeplejack Lee Quinn, 37, posing with three members of the latest all-girl crew who will help him sail from Tahiti to Australia. He has, with other girl crews, made it from California so far. With him are June von Donop, 42, of Seattle and Honolulu; Barbara Sodi, 27, Berwyn, Ill.; and Mrs. Virginia Frey, 35, St. Petersburg, Fla.

AUDIENCE TRANSMUTED

Brisk Alchemist Gay Abracadabra

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON
THE ALCHEMIST
By Ben Jonson

Prologue: Bob Chambliss
Face: Michael Warren
Saul: Anthony Jenkins
Dad: George Hurrell
Dapper: Jennifer Chatter
Druggist: Bruce Sharp
Sir Epicure: Douglas Fraser
Sir Epicure's Man: Kevin Papp
Anahis: Christopher Ross
Trisulation: Neville Hindes
Kastri: Margaret Coleman
Dame Plant: Foster Goodhead
Lowell: Roland Goodhead
Parson: Gordon Armstrong
Neighbors: Ailsa Bishop, Bob Chambliss, Richard Wood, Margaret Duddy, Douglas Young

Weighty roles enacted by Anthony Jenkins (the Alchemist), Michael Warren and Jennifer Chatter were carried off and sustained with style, verve and brilliant pace. Of these three, Mrs. Chatter represents "town" as a member of St. Matthias Little Theatre Society, and the two actors, "gown" or Uvie faculty.

An outstanding student performance was that of Douglas Fraser, whose aversive and glut-tony fairly dripped from his be-ringed fingers.

Christopher Ross also contributed a consistent and highly effective characterization. So did Keith Pepper, particularly when he was aping the Spanish Grandee. But surely one of the memorable delights of the production for everybody will be Dr. Peter Smith's vivid portrait of a simpleton.

WONDROUS ALTAR
A major contribution is made by Donald Harvey's set and the chemistry department's wondrous alchemist's altar.

But the costumes by Clara Hare, and the ruffs and hats by Elizabeth Hagmeier are truly a tour de force.

The widow's costume on Margaret Coleman, with her fair face set in the midst of an enormous black ruff; the Spanish Grandee in white and bronze, the lush, gaudy trappings on Sir Epicure are highlights.

Not all costumes fit as well as they might but this no doubt will be speedily rectified.

It should be noted that striking Elizabethan furniture has been specially designed and constructed under direction of Wolfgang Baba.

DELIGHTFUL ABSURDITY
Quality of acting, sureness and vitality of direction, superb costuming and stage design plus the fact that the play is full of action and delightful absurdity in situation, gives it strong appeal for a discerning audience.

Ben Jonson's penetrating evaluation of manners and motives, his sharp wit and many-faceted ironies, make this satire a timeless one despite its archaic language.

Obviously if language has changed, men have not.

It is astonishing to note the uniformity of the large cast, another tribute to Mr. Hare.

The Campus Players components of town, gown and student were well represented here, but variations between those of considerable experience and those of less, were small.

$30 Million Increase Council Aim
OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council urged the federal government Tuesday to increase its endowment fund to $80,000,000 from $50,000,000 to give it more revenue to support the arts, humanities and social sciences.

In a brief submitted to Secretary of State Lamontagne, the council said that revenue from the $50,000,000 endowment fund is inadequate to enable it to fulfill its obligations.

"The council has been given a great deal to do, and the logic of the situation demands that it be given a great deal to do it with," the brief said.

Ocean Link Route Sought In Northwest Passage

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first attempt will be made next summer to navigate the Northwest Passage both ways in a single season.

"Our purpose is to prove that the passage is ice-free long enough in the late summer so that ocean-going ships can use it as a shorter route between east and west," Arctic navigator Scott E. Alexander said Tuesday.

Plans of the expedition he will head were outlined here at a press conference.

The 107-foot Vancouver yacht, Northland Princess is the ship chosen for the venture—to sail the Northwest Passage between Vancouver and Frobisher Bay in the eastern Arctic, and return.

TWO MONTHS ALLOWED

The schedule calls for the Northland Princess to sail from here at the end of July and return within two months. Her bows will be steel-plated for Arctic navigation.

A company has been formed called the North West Passage Company Limited to finance the voyage, which is being sponsored by the British American Oil Company Limited, Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, and Northland Navigation Company Limited, owners of the yacht.

Capt. Richard Alexander, brother of Scott Alexander, will be master of the ship. Vice-president of the company is Gerald Waring, Ottawa journalist whose column appears regularly in the Times. Mr. Waring plans to accompany the expedition as special correspondent.

First transit of the Northwest Passage, from east to west, was made by Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen in 1903-06 in the Gjøa.

RCMP superintendent Henry

Larsen sailed from west to east in the St. Roch in 1940-42 and from east to west in 1944.

Peterson Defends Supps Substitute

Education Minister Leslie Peterson Tuesday tolled the final bell for supplemental Grade 12 examinations.

But Opposition MLAs maintained some young people will have difficulty getting jobs without their junior matriculation. The "supps" were abandoned last year.

Mr. Peterson said that instead of writing supps, students faced an adjudication committee.

In 1962, he said, 712 students got their matric by writing supps. Last year, the committee passed a total of 664.

Mr. Peterson said matric is not necessary for students going to vocational schools.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said there is one group of students that cannot get a certificate of matriculation—those who fail the university program in high school.

"It is a condition of employment," added Alan Macfarlane (Lib.-Oak Bay).

Mr. Peterson replied that this was an "unfortunate" tendency and represents faulty thinking on the part of employers.

'SORE POINT' UNDER STUDY

Local school boards should have the right to choose their own district superintendents, Liberal leader Ray Perrault told the legislature during debate on Education Minister Leslie Peterson's salary Tuesday.

A sore point with school trustees, the appointment of superintendents is under study by his department, Mr. Peterson said.

Mr. Perrault said only Vancouver appoints its own superintendent.

Youth Guidance Expert To Address City Teachers

A California expert on youth guidance will be speaker at a public meeting to lead off the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association convention Thursday.

Cedric Boeske, director of the Santa Barbara school system work experience-education program, will take the platform at Victoria Senior Secondary School at 8 p.m., Thursday.

His address will be an education week feature of the two-day convention.

Mr. Boeske has seen a steady growth in the work experience program undertaken since 1953 in Santa Barbara, and last year, under his guidance, 2,000 pupils were placed in jobs.

The program allows pupils to take employment in the community, in business, professions and industries, thereby gaining experience in what may be chosen fields.

The work experience program was set up by lay persons and educators who formed a private foundation to finance it.

As a stimulant to local interest in this aspect of education, GVTA has sent 100 invitations to Victoria businessmen to attend the meeting.

Other sessions of the convention will feature speakers from Florida, Toronto and the University of Alberta, Calgary branch. First business gets under way at 10 a.m. Friday, following opening ceremonies at 9.

There will be a reception at the Club Sirocco, Friday night, and a dance in the Bay-Street Armory Saturday night.

MORE HELP FROM GOV'T FOR STUDENTS

More B.C. University students will get government aid this year, Education Minister Leslie Peterson said Tuesday night.

A total of 5,000 scholarships and bursaries is likely because of an increase of $50,000 in the budget estimates, Mr. Peterson told the legislature.

Last year 4,643 students got aid.

The provincial student loan fund, administered by the University of B.C., will be reviewed in the light of new federal aid, Mr. Peterson said.

He said he has not yet received any details of the new federal plan.

Indian Workshop

NANAIMO — Indians from about 20 reserves will attend a workshop at Nanaimo March 9-20 to discuss how they can help solve their own community health problems.

The workshop at Nanaimo Indian Hospital will be under the guidance of Ethel Martiens, advisor in health education for the medical services division of the department of health and welfare.

'Ask the Teacher'

Questions about school and the educational system are being answered through the Times by teachers as an education week feature. Send questions to:

Ask the Teacher
Victoria Daily Times
2631 Douglas Street.

Q.—Is there any instruction for parents of grade eight or nine students taking the new maths course?

A.—Yes. A special course was offered this term by Greater Victoria adult education evening division to acquaint parents with the new approach to maths. Some 45 persons registered.

Instructor is William Garner, of Lansdowne Junior Secondary, and reports state the course to be extremely interesting. Another course may be offered if requested.

Q.—Are remedial programs available for pupils with difficulties in specific subjects such as reading or maths?

A.—There are no specialists for specific subjects, although Greater Victoria Teachers' Association endorses the principle of having such specialists available. There is a specialist in the school system who deals with speech defects, but at the moment other remedial work is the responsibility of individual schools.

Many schools do implement special remedial classes in core subjects, some teachers undertaking after school remedial sessions.

'Change Gears' Industry Told

Think In Terms of World Markets, Bonner Tells Inert Manufacturers

Canadian industry has a psychological problem—it is reluctant to enter world markets, Trade Minister Robert Bonner said Tuesday.

He told the legislature: "There is a great deal of inertia—I'm not being critical, I'm merely observing a fact—in persuading them to look out from what they are doing."

"It is sometimes extremely difficult to interest manufacturers in expanding their horizons and opportunities."

Mr. Bonner recalled a sample show two years ago sponsored by the B.C. and federal governments and the Vancouver Board of Trade at which "we had to practically twist arms to persuade some of our secondary manufacturers" to exhibit.

"People are not geared psychologically to markets abroad," he added.

Mr. Bonner said there is no lack of participation from abroad in B.C. trade fairs.

'Use Rubble To Improve Beaches'

Rock rubble from city engineering projects should be used to build small breakwaters for neighborhood beaches and provide warm water bathing, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow proposed Tuesday.

He told city parks committee "people have been crying for warmer swimming for years," and such beaches as Gonzales, Horseshoe Bay and Troup Beach in Victoria West could use fill from jobs like street blasting.

"Since we're not dumping garbage into the sea anymore, the beaches are improved. It used to be that a person could dive in and come up with a cabbage in his arms," Ald. Edgelow said.

Engineer James Garnett said the problem with breakwaters, leaving only a narrow neck of open water to the sea, is stagnation. "Circulation keeps a beach 'nice and sandy,'" he said.

Another member of the committee observed there is still other undesirable flotsam in off-shore waters, despite the reduction in floating garbage.

"The place where you have to twist arms is Canada."

The problem isn't confined to B.C. firms, Mr. Bonner said. "The same may be said of almost any province in Canada."

The House spent 2½ hours debating the estimates of the trade department before moving on to education.

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault called for a full-time trade minister. Mr. Bonner doubled as attorney-general.

The Liberal leader also proposed: waiving the 5 per-cent sales tax for new industry; a complete inventory of B.C.'s economic potential; 12 regional trade offices across B.C.; better liaison with the federal government and more accent on business with Japan.

SPEND MORE

Mr. Perrault said the trade department's budget is too small. It is folly to spend only $1,030,000 on such an important department.

He suggested B.C. plants to assemble goods made in Japan for supply to eastern Canada markets.

Mr. Perrault also expressed concern that B.C.'s labor force is not expanding as rapidly as capital investment and production. The reason: automation. He predicted the Peace and Columbia river power systems will be virtually run by automation.

NEW RAILWAY

Mr. Perrault also proposed a new northern B.C. railway from coal fields in the Nass River area to Stewart and Prince Rupert.

Major expansion of port facilities in the two northern centres would stimulate trade with Japan, he said.

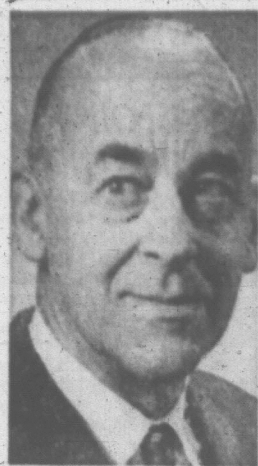

Mr. Bonner agreed with Mr. Perrault on one point—the need for reduction of Canadian trade barriers.

Business leaders and the federal government are now providing "real leadership" in promoting tariff cuts, Mr. Bonner said.

VALUE

"A fair return to money, goods, services, for something exchanged."

EX-PRISONER'S CHARGES ON CITY JAIL CONDITIONS DENIED

'What Does He Think We Are?' Asks Chief Gregory

By DESMOND BELL

An angry police chief said today that statements by a former prisoner about conditions in the city jail are ridiculous.

Said Chief J. F. Gregory: "If this youngster had ever been in the army he'd have found conditions a lot worse."

The chief, and the cafe owner who is jail caterer, invited reporters to sample the Tuesday evening meal at the jail.

The invitation was given to disprove charges made in Tuesday's Times by Ron Bennett, 19, who was recently in the jail for four weeks because of motoring offences.

Bennett said the food he got was maggoty and unfit for humans and the accommodation in the cells is primitive and unsanitary.

"UNTHINKABLE"

Said Chief Gregory: "What sort of people does Bennett think we are? It would be unthinkable to serve men with maggoty food."

The chief said he periodically inspects food brought into the jail by the caterer, King Chow, a cafe owner in Chinatown. He invited reporters to go to the jail and inspect the next meal being served.

It looked and smelled good. There were hamburger and onions, two vegetables, potatoes, a dessert of rice and raisins, and tea.

Mr. King said the food he supplies for prisoners is exactly the same as he serves in his restaurant.

"Anyone who believes what Bennett says, and does not take my word for it, can come to my cafe and see for themselves."

The chief said the lack of exercise space, another of Bennett's complaints, is common in local lock-ups. He said that normally Bennett would not have been confined for four weeks in the city jail but would have been sent to prison where proper exercise facilities are available.

Bennett was detained longer than usual in the local jail because, after being sentenced on one driving offence, he had to be held pending trial on another one.

B.C. BUYS 130 ACRES FOR COWICHAN R. PARK

The provincial government has bought $27,000 worth of land for a new riverside park near Duncan.

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said today the 130-acre area includes a mile and a half frontage on the north side of the Cowichan River.

The land, a short distance upstream from Skutz Falls, was owned by people in Duncan and Vancouver.

Parks officials say the area is ideal for a riverside park.

There now will be public access to nine and a half miles along the banks of the river.

'FITS OUR PURPOSE'

Board Enthusiastic About Paul Building

Greater Victoria school trustees like the idea of getting the E. B. Paul Building as an administration centre.

The University of Victoria offer was discussed by trustees at a special meeting Tuesday night.

The school board has been planning a new headquarters replacing Craigdarroch Castle for several years.

The university is selling its Lansdowne campus in order to consolidate at Gordon Head.

School board chairman Mrs. A. B. Thompson said trustees talked over informally the possibility of taking up the offer.

"Two members were absent, so we made no decisions," she said.

MEET MARCH 16

Another special meeting will be called before the next regular board meeting March 16.

"It exactly fits our purpose; we would need about that floor area (22,400 sq. ft.). It seems an ideal situation, allowing plenty of parking and central to the district," Mrs. Thompson noted.

"The only question is money."

The district has $175,000 from previous school building referendums earmarked for an administration building.

Trustees are discussing whether to ask for more monies for this purpose in an upcoming referendum to buy sites and

B.C. Government Retired Employees' Association: 2 p.m., Moose Hall; speaker will be weatherman Bill Mackie.

Oak Bay Kiwanis Club: 6:15 p.m., Oak Bay Beach Hotel; father and son night with speaker By Bailey of B.C. Lions professional football club.

Victoria Lodge No. 2, BPOE (Elks): 8 p.m., Elks' Hall, 732 Cormorant Street.

Topics of the Day

The P & O Orient Lines

Oreades will make her last visit to B.C. waters Friday, before returning to the United Kingdom for conversion into a one-class vessel for the Australian service.

She is expected to pick up pilot and other officials off Brocksie Ledge about noon, inbound for Vancouver.

Helmcken Centennial Park

Committee is sponsoring a seafood supper Saturday at 6 p.m. at Strawberry Vale Community Hall, corner of Burnside and High streets.

Proceeds will be used for purchase and installation of park equipment. Tickets cost $1.50 for adults and $1 for children.

Victoria Chapter, Order of DeMolay, will hold a business meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Knights of Pythias Hall, 723 Cormorant Street.

Water Budget Goes Up But Rates to Hold

Domestic and industrial water rates to municipalities will remain unchanged, although Greater Victoria Water Board Tuesday passed an increased 1964 budget.

The board approved a $1,250,000 budget and heard application by board employees for a 3 1/2 per cent wage increase that would cost about $4,000 more than today's $120,000 wage bill.

This matter was deferred for further study.

Profit from logging within the watershed will account for $150,000 of board revenues this year.

Wholesale rate per thousand gallons of water to municipalities will remain at 12 1/2 cents, the same as the past three years.

Last year's water board budget was $897,304.

Much of this year's increase will pay for capital improvement, including a start on Japan Gulch tunnel work in the fall.

Jo Ann Malone, a 14-year-old girl who left home last Saturday, is still missing.

She only had $1 with her when she disappeared. Anyone who knows her whereabouts should contact city police or her stepmother, Mrs. Joseph Malone, 1704 Foul Bay Road.

Jo Ann is described as five feet tall, 105 pounds, dark brown hair and blue eyes. When last seen she was wearing a blue dress, blue coat and red kerchief.

A man who earlier pleaded guilty to keeping liquor illegally for sale was fined $400 in city court Tuesday.

Thomas E. Sullivan, 326 Simcoe, was convicted of a similar offence a few years ago.

He was caught by police with the liquor in a car he had borrowed from a friend.

North and South Saanich Agricultural Society will launch its new season with a spring social Friday at 8:15 p.m. at Saanichton Agricultural Hall.

An open panel discussion will be held on agricultural problems, followed by a stage show.

Vancouver Island Chapter, American Society for Metals, will meet March 11 at 8 p.m. at Dockyard Officer's Club.

Guest speaker will be metallurgical engineer E. C. Bovee of Boeing Aircraft Company, Seattle. His subject is "Construction of Hydrofoil Patrol Craft."

Greater Victoria Family and Children's Service will hold a meeting for prospective foster parents Thursday at 8 p.m. at Spencerhouse, 1951 Cook Street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hickinbottom will speak on their seven foster children and social worker Mrs. B. J. Bryant will discuss some of the foster children she has supervised.

Agency officials will also be present to answer questions on board rates and medical and clothing policy.

CRANE CALLED FOR SCULPTURE SHOW

Heavyweight Card at Gallery

Greater Victoria Art Gallery had to hire a sturdy crane to assemble its current exhibition.

Fourteen pieces of sculpture by Victoria's Elza Mayhew were moved on to location Monday for a two-week show which opened Tuesday.

"For the first time we had to hire a crane to help move the 1900-pound bronze statue now resting outside," gallery director Colin Graham said.

The sculpture, cast in a foundry in Oregon while Mrs. Mayhew was teaching at the university there, will leave Victoria next month for Venice.

Mrs. Mayhew is only the second B.C. artist to have the honor of being represented at the Venice Biennial Show, the most important exhibit of contemporary art work in the world.

Previous artist was Jack Shadbolt, formerly of Victoria. The Canadian pavilion in Venice will be filled by the works of the Victoria sculptress and, Toronto painter Harold Town.

Sculpture is now on view at the Art Gallery 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday, 2-5 p.m. Sundays and 7:30-9:30 p.m. Thursday evenings.

ESCAPEE RETURNED TO PRISON HE FLED

Carlow Back in Colquitz

Frank Carlow today is back behind bars at Colquitz Prison.

He was transferred there from Saanich police cells where he had been held since turning himself in to police Saturday morning, 14 hours after escaping from Colquitz.

Carlow surrendered after telling The Times of what he called appalling conditions inside the jail. He said he escaped only to publicize conditions inside.

His main worry at that time was that he would be sent back to Colquitz when he gave himself up. Police told him no assurance of this could be given him.

Carlow appeared in Saanich court Tuesday charged with escaping lawful custody. He was remanded until next week without plea.

The Victoria Bar Association today asked lawyer Jack Gatehouse to represent Carlow under its Legal Aid program.

Reeve Offers To Mediate Yard Strike

Meeting Under Way With Union Chiefs

Reeve M. M. Frazer of North Vancouver has offered to act as mediator in the deadlocked shipyard strike.

The offer was made this morning, and Reeve Frazer was meeting this afternoon with the union bargaining committee.

The latest round of union-management negotiations in Vancouver Monday failed when management turned down a demand from the bargaining committee of the 22 unions involved.

The demand, which had first been made in negotiations before the setting up of a conciliation board last year, was for a two-year contract with 30 cents in wage increases plus fringes.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Meanwhile, William Stewart, secretary of the Marine Workers and Boilermakers, the key union in negotiations, told Vancouver Labour Council Tuesday night it will campaign for public ownership of Burrard Dry Dock (Vancouver) and Yarrow Ltd. (Victoria) if demands are not met.

Mr. Stewart said: "The only foreseeable work Burrard has, excluding emergency repairs, is the weather sheds for the government."

"During the war, the taxpayers paid all kinds of money to the shipyards. Then they were taken over by Burrard."

"Why should those taxpayers walk up and down the sidewalk while the Wallace family takes all the profits and waits us out?"

If the company just wants to wait out the strike, he said, the government should take over the yards "and build our ships for us."

"Yarrows is owned by Burrard enterprises. It's a dog in a manger attitude."

Man Committed On Rape Charges

Larry Kenneth Kanester was committed Tuesday for trial on charges of raping two University of Victoria students Jan. 8 and Jan. 20.

He was committed by Magistrate William Oster after a preliminary hearing of the charges which stretched over five days.

Sale of the original campus building—the Young building—to Saanich as a municipal hall is also under discussion, although steps are already being taken to erect a new one at Swan Lake.

$350,000 Allotted For City Structure

A splurge of new construction in Victoria and Up-Island will follow the approval of estimates totalling more than $1,570,000 tabled in Ottawa Tuesday by the federal public works department.

One of the largest allocations is $350,000 to begin construction of a $1,100,000 federal building opposite McCall Brothers Funeral Chapel on Vancouver Street, between Pandora Avenue and Johnson Street.

This two-storey L-shaped building will house 300 employees of the federal Unemployment Insurance Commission (now at 1039 Johnson) and the federal tax department (614 Humboldt).

SUMMER START

The site is now being drilled for foundations and construction is expected to start this summer. But a spokesman for the architects, Wade, Stockhill and Armour, said the drawing board plans are not yet complete.

The new building will occupy a whole city block between Pandora and Johnson, and will have a large parking lot. It will be of modern design.

NEW DEPOT

The sum of $150,000 has been allocated to the transport department to begin work on a wharf, office, stores and shops centre to replace the old Victoria marine maintenance depot at the foot of the Johnson Street Bridge.

It is understood this sum will be used to purchase a site on Belleville Street between the Canadian Pacific Terminal building and the Bapco paint plant, where steamers used to be berthed.

"This site has been recommended," a spokesman for the public works department in Vancouver said today, "but it has not been finally approved. The site has been under discussion for more than two years."

Two Men Fined On Dangerous Driving Charges

Two persons were convicted in city court Tuesday of dangerous driving.

James B. Roach, 970 Burnside, was fined $125 and an additional $100 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He struck a car on Douglas near Finlayson Jan. 17 and the other car skidded out of control and into a power pole. Roach's car was found later by police. He turned himself in later that day.

Murray E. Nanton, 1093 Oak Bay, was fined $100. He was paced at 60 mph on Pandora early on the morning of Feb. 8. Evidence showed he drove through a red light at 53 mph. He told police when stopped that he was in a hurry to get home to bed.

$25,253 Fines Levied In 1963 On Sportsmen

Fines totalling $25,253 were levied against 923 persons during 1963 for violations of the British Columbia fish and game laws.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said that by far the largest number of charges laid were for carrying loaded firearms in vehicles, for which 277 persons were convicted. This is one of the most foolhardy and dangerous practices possible for sportsmen, he said.

Among the common violations were hunting or fishing without a licence (165); transporting animals of the deer family without evidence of sex (61); and failing to properly look-game tags (45).

Tree-Farm Bid Turned Down

An application for a tree-farm licence involving 10,000,000 board feet of timber by Prince Rupert Sawmills Ltd. and Yukon-Lumber Ltd. has been rejected, Lands and Forests Minister Williston said Tuesday.

Mr. Williston said he will only consider applications for licences involving the construction of pulp mills.

Ask The Times

Q. Will you please tell me how many jet planes have been damaged by seagulls at Patricia Bay airport? Are these birds not protected in this province? J.B.

A. Pat Bay Airport has no record of a seagull ever damaging a jet aircraft there. Gulls are protected under the federal migratory birds treaty.

A typographical error resulted in an incorrect answer in Tuesday's Ask the Times. Will Rogers died in 1935, not 1936.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Pocket-Size Book Supplies
Extra Travel Information
By PENNY SAVER

If your holidays are coming up in the near future and you have been toying with the thought of going off to Europe, Britain or the United States, now is the time to start gathering necessary information.

To help you, manufacturers have put out a pocket-size travel book containing information on passports and visas, currency and exchange, time changes, itinerary, road and sea travel and zone standard time for Canada, Europe and the States. Book is made in England, has a real leather cover and comes in two sizes, priced at $2.95 and $3.95.

Book also leaves space for names of places visited, date, weather conditions and any other interesting data. The back of this book can be used for addresses and phone numbers.

When you return home and start pasting photos you took of your tour into an album, a paste pen is a handy gadget to help you avoid the mess of excess glue where it doesn't belong. Press down on the tip and it releases only one dot of glue in just the right amount for each corner of the picture. Cost is only 98 cents.

Guaranteed for three years, pen can also be used for fixing wood, leather, china, crockery, glass, plastic, repairing earrings, gift wrapping and attaching stamps and labels.

An easy-to-use magnetic clip is another handy item to carry when travelling. These permanent magnets require no nails or screws and will cling to any metal surface. Clips come in two sizes and are priced at 49 and 79 cents each. Useful for holding memos in convenient, easy-to-see places, clips will cling to the dash of your car or to the glove compartment.

They may also be used around home and will cling to the surface of your fridge, shelves, stove, medicine chest or light switch plates.

If you are planning a trip soon, why not carry some of these items along? But, first, call Penny at 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"If you're bored and want something to do, fill the wheelbarrow with water and take the goldfish for a walk."

WHY GROW OLD?
By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Problems Seem to Grow
When Health Is Below Par

"Good health is not necessary in order to keep from being bored. Measures to avoid boredom are more important to the person who doesn't have good health than to the one who does."

This wise remark came to me recently in a reader's letter. The individual with bubbling, vibrant health and energy will always find something to do and something to be interested in. The one who is chronically tired or is harassed by minor discomforts may be sabotaged by these, and understandably so.

Remember this—any problem you have will seem worse and more difficult to solve, and any interests you have more impossible to activate, if your health and energy are below par.

I receive the most remarkable and stimulating letters from my readers and once in a while I want to share their stories of courage, vision and hope with you. Therefore I will quote a bit more from the letter I have already mentioned.

"I can assure you from personal experience that the right attitude toward life does do wonderful things for health. I will not say that it is not sometimes a struggle to keep going, to maintain the right attitude, but without the goals I set for myself, without the commitments I made, I would have quit many times."

"I am 59 years old. I was born tired. I was one of those children who was never strong, but who had no specific discernible disease. My blood pressure has always been low which is probably one reason I have always been tired. In my teens I exercised because I felt better when I did. However, I didn't finish high school because of my health."

"What I want to tell you is that my health is better today at age 59 than it ever was, and that I am happier than I have ever been before in my life. Despite a cancer operation 10 years ago, which removed a large portion of my stomach, and several other less severe operations, I have kept busy.

"Six weeks after my stomach operation (knowing I had to do something besides think) I took a 6-week-old baby to care for. I now have a licensed children's nursery and care for 12 children in my home every day."

"I have taught myself typing and have taken swimming and dancing lessons through adult education. In the past I often wondered if I could continue, but I didn't dare give up and I am never bored."

DEAR ABBY...

Pick An 'Off' Season!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My brother, two sisters and I are married and we all live on the Pacific Coast. My mother, who is 76, lives alone in the east. She has relatives there, but none of them bothers with her. She has fought with every companion she's had to live with her, and she's getting to the point where she shouldn't be living alone. (Her hearing is failing and she is very forgetful). I have begged her to come here and live with me, but she doesn't want to move. If she wanted to be independent she could have her own apartment near me, where I would be only minutes away if she needed me for anything. She has plenty of money in the bank and a monthly income; she refuses to move, and all she talks about is dying. I certainly can't move. What's the solution?

NO NAMES PLEASE.

DEAR NO NAMES: Go to your mother during the blistering heat of the summer, or the biting, bitter cold of the winter. "Kidnap" your mother and take her back with you. Once she sees the Pacific Coast she'll quit talking about the pearly gates.

DEAR ABBY: For two years I have been married to a man who had been married for 16 years to another woman. She passed away. Something has been irritating me, and I don't know whether I should mention it to Roswell or not. He has the habit of referring to his first wife as "my wife." Abby, I am his wife!

Don't you think he should either refer to her by name, or else as my "first wife" or even my "former wife"? I don't expect him to blot out the memory of 16 years with another woman, but it hurts me deeply to hear Roswell refer to her as his wife.

HIS WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: The next time it occurs, correct him ever so gently with, "Roswell darling, I am your wife. She is your former wife." Repeat the reminder until the memories of 16 years fade—as they will.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Popeye's Wife" that Love, not teeth, is the magic ingredient which changes a kiss from nothing to something.

Valera Taylor Married, Saturday

Daffodils, tulips and plum blossom decorated St. Matthias Church Saturday evening for the marriage of Valera Wyn Taylor and Murray Louis Schmelz. Rev. Angus Cameron of Lundavra officiated and organist was Dr. J. V. Bateman.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Taylor, 1331 Jubilee Avenue; Mrs. A. Matte and L. Schmelz, both of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white lace that featured a scoop neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves and semi-train. A swirl of organza roses added back interest. The four-tier shoulder-length veil misted from a headpiece of white flowers. Red roses and white freesia were in the bouquet.

Floor-length gowns of moss green brocade and matching jackets were choice of maid of honor, Miss Vicki Rigby and bridesmaid, Miss Sharon Roberts. Hats en tone, silver shoes and pale pink carnation bouquets completed their ensembles.

A headband of pale green flowers toned with the floor-length peau de soie frock worn by flower girl Carrie Schmelz. Pink carnations were in her colonial bouquet.

Robert Schmelz was best man for his brother and ushers were Terry Matte and Robert Taylor, brothers of the principals.

Yellow roses decorated the head table and yellow and white decor was used in the Union Centre, Quadra Street, for the reception which followed. Ken Sturrock proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to the mainland, the bride wore a red suit, black accessories and white corsage.

Spanish Students Live Like 'Plutocrats'

By ELSIE WORTHINGTON

Reason dark-eyed Crista Roberts gives for her love of travel is that she finds it interesting to meet peoples of other countries.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric A. Roberts, Cranberry Road, Salt Spring Island, has just returned from several months' abroad, spent chiefly in Spain and England. This, she says, has merely increased her desire to see more of the world.

Miss Crista Roberts

While in Spain Miss Roberts attended summer courses at the Universities of Jaca and Barcelona, receiving a diploma from each college. She is keenly interested in foreign languages, with a preference for Spanish.

"I especially enjoyed the time I spent in Jaca. Only the best Spanish-Castilian is spoken there," she describes the town as a lovely summer resort, high in the Pyrenees, 15 miles from the French frontier. Enrolled at the university were 135 students from 26 nations. Miss Roberts was the only Canadian.

"Spanish universities are modern and beautiful, and very comfortable," she says. "Maid room service is provided, and meals are served in a spacious dining room. I felt like a plutocrat."

The young student did find considerable difference between Canadian and Spanish food.

TYPICAL BREAKFAST

A typical continental breakfast is served, consisting of chocolate, coffee or milk. Lunch and dinner have similar menus. Each comprises four or five courses, from hors d'oeuvres through fish, eggs and meat, topped with a simple dessert, usually fresh fruit.

"The food was delightful! It was not highly spiced as I had expected," she said. "Meal-times were enjoyable in Spain and so leisurely."

She found the people friendly and hospitable. Travelers in a railway coach behave as one big family, with greetings exchanged and food shared as soon as the journey gets under way. This pleasant discovery was made when she and another student took advantage of four days between courses to visit Madrid and Valencia before proceeding to Barcelona.

"My coach companions were surprised that I, a Canadian, should be travelling third-class, and found it hard to believe that I did so for financial reasons. They had the idea that all Canadians are wealthy."

Miss Roberts remembers, with mixed feelings, the bullfight she attended. Her modest-priced seat was located near the aisle. "People actually walked on me to reach their seats. I was sore and bruised all over but dared not leave my place for I would surely have lost it."

"Eight bulls were killed in that fight while children as young as two and three-year-olds cheered wildly. It was exciting, colorful—and horrible!"

Traditional Spanish houses have beautiful architectural features, but the standard of comfort left much to be desired.

"Everywhere I went, apart from the universities, there was trouble with the plumbing. Even so-called modern houses are obsolete by Canadian standards."

But, while Spaniards may lack indoor comfort, they seem to possess an abundance of outdoor beauty.

"Flowers bloom freely everywhere," she said. "On balconies and in tiny garden patches, in big gardens and public parks." One surprise was to find Spanish women dressed mostly in pastel shades. "I had expected their clothes to be very colorful."

The women are style conscious—favoring continental designs—but they have little opportunity to indulge their modish tastes. "It takes a lot of money to dress fashionably in Spain. Clothes are expensive and of poor quality."

Miss Roberts greatly admired the beautiful carriage of Spanish women. "Even young girls carry themselves so gracefully," she said.

She found young people have less freedom than their Canadian counterparts. Girls especially are kept under strict parental control. "Mamma keeps a watchful eye on her daughters."

Before going to Spain the young traveller enjoyed an extensive holiday in England and Wales. "Much of Wales is rugged and beautiful," she commented. "There is a movement at present to bring back the Celtic language, the original Welsh tongue."

Her next port-of-call? Mexico: But she hopes to take a position and earn some money first.

Gives Final Audience Before Royal Birth

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth today carried out her last scheduled official duties before the birth of her fourth child expected in about two weeks.

She received the credentials of new South Vietnamese Ambassador Vu Van Mau and also received S. J. Nuro, Tanganyikan high commissioner here, in a farewell audience.

Apart from attending to state papers and cabinet reports, the Queen will rest quietly until the birth expected in 11 or 13 days time. Court gynecologist Sir John Peel said she is "wonderfully well."

The Queen's midwife, grey-haired Sister Helen Rowe, 64, moved into the palace Monday. Everything is ready for the birth in the Belgian suite of the ground floor of the palace, which has been fitted with a standard high hospital bed. Arrangements for a aesthetic equipment have been made. A cradle draped in white silk and nylon, a smooth sheer fabric, with touches of blue is waiting with a layette of tiny clothes.

The first pram which the Queen's other three children used has been renovated. But a few changes were necessary in the second-floor nursery suite where the baby will be under the charge of nurse Mabel Anderson, who also looks after four-year-old Prince Andrew.

Mrs. Kulman Takes Grand Matron Office

Mrs. E. Kulman, Victoria, will be installed as Grand Royal Matron for 1964-65 at ninth annual session of the Grand Court, Order of the Amaranth, to be held in Royal Towers Hotel, New Westminster, on Friday and Saturday.

Provincial past grand officers attending from Victoria will include Mrs. H. Finbow, Mrs. G. Neelands, Mrs. M. Hill, Mrs. M. Holman, Messrs. L. Neelands, A. Cooke and T. Baldwin.

Meetings will be convened by Mrs. Nellie Thorpe, New Westminster, present grand matron, and S. Buckthorpe, Burnaby, grand patron. Special guests will be Mrs. Leila Bollen, Los Angeles, Calif., and S. Sorenson, Wisconsin, supreme royal matron and patron.

Among other provincial past grand officers present will be Mrs. H. Drysdale, Mrs. E. Tait, Messrs. G. Jones, H. Peakall and E. Cliff of Vancouver; Mrs. E. Robinson and J. Robinson of Comox.

Wed in Historic French Chapel

St. John the Baptist Chapel in Metz, France was scene of a recent ceremony that united Audrey Elizabeth Woodward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Woodward, 517 Tait Street, Victoria, and Laurence Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Kelly of Culver City, Calif.

Surprise

Gifts were in a gaily decorated laundry basket when Mrs. W. F. Barnard and Miss Mary Barnard entertained at a surprise shower in their Cedar Avenue home in honor of bride-elect, Miss Marianne Lea. Corsages were presented to the honor guest, to her mother, Mrs. E. Lea, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. N. Knudsen. Also attending were the bride-elect's aunt, Mrs. E. Holmes, Kelowna; Mrs. W. Johnston, Mrs. B. Calloway, the Misses Pam and Paula Barnard, Jane and Karen Knudsen, Margaret Garrison, Cath Tervo, Pat Thompson, Sharon Rogers, Sylvia Byers, Sharon Hewitson and Mary Morrison.

originally built to serve the Chateau de Mercy which now houses the First Air Division headquarters of the Royal Canadian Air Force, where the groom is presently stationed.

In accordance with French law, the couple had been married in a civil ceremony the previous day, this being performed by the mayor of Ars, a neighboring village.

G. A. Gutteridge travelled from London, England to give his niece in marriage at the chapel ceremony. Mrs. Gutteridge accompanied him.

Tall white lilies and carnations were at the altar for the candle light service. Wing Cmdr. Halle officiated and organist was Mr. Paige.

The bride was lovely in a full-length gown of embroidered brocade that had a belled skirt, sweeping back to a small chapel train. The bodice featured a scoop neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. A pearl and rhinestone coronet held the waist-length veil. She carried a spray of long-stemmed red roses.

Only attendant was Miss Rose Stanford, St. John's, Nfld. Her cluster bouquet of pink roses toned with her street-length dress of taffeta brocade.

Ed Haaf, Vancouver, was best man and ushering guests were Moe Douville and Paul Fedy. A reception followed in the airman's club.

As her going-away outfit, the bride chose a royal blue sheath dress and black accessories.

Return Home

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Marling returned to their Thompson Avenue home on the weekend after a six-month motor tour in which they circled the North American continent, including Mexico.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Twenty or 30 middle-aged and older-aged women gather backstage at "110 in the Shade" each matinee to swoon and drool over Robert Horton of "Wagon Train" fame. These nylon-soxers send him flowers and bring him cake and candy. I witnessed this myself — one woman, perhaps sixtyish, admitted that she'd seen the show six times and added, "Don't be surprised if you see me a couple of more times." So what were you saying about the hysterical teen-agers and the Beatles?

Laurence Harvey had a lot of laughs at Sardi's kissing all the gals including the dignified headwaiter who didn't know what to say. They say now that Jane Fonda's rushing back to France to woo with Roger "What'd you lose on the Liston-Clay fight?" a friend asked newspaperman Dick Leahy. "Just my confidence in sports writers," he said.

STILL ANOTHER BEATLE?—Now really, aren't we carrying this Beatle thing a bit too far? While he may not be a banjo virtuoso, this entertainer in Sparks, Nev., can probably tap out a mean rhythm.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Rose Marie Kading, 12, Knoxville, Ia., for her question:

Do Bananas Have Seeds?

We expect a fruit to hold the seed for a new plant. But the banana is a fruit that breaks this rule of the plant world. You could buy a hand of 20 bananas in the store and plant each yellow finger in the best soil. But not one of these bananas would sprout a new banana plant.

The most important job a plant must do is to hand on life to its children. Many plants produce seeds enclosed in pulpy fruit. But a few plants produce seeds that come to nothing. A rosy-red strawberry is freckled with tiny seeds, but as a rule these tiny seeds never develop into new plants. The meaty banana fruit also has seeds that come to nothing.

Strawberries and bananas, however, have other ways to reproduce themselves. A strawberry plant sends out runners that finger their way through the soil. They send down root systems and sprout their leafy crowns at some distance from the parent strawberry plant.

The banana plant grows from a rootstock or rhizome. It is the biggest herb of the plant world, and its trunk of furled foliage may grow 30 feet tall. It is crowned with a spreading umbrella of huge, palmy green leaves. When the banana plant is about 10 months old, a long stem snakes down, down under the shady leaves and soon bursts forth in clusters of tiny flowerets.

New Shoots Replace Old

Some of the flowerets bear male and some bear female cells. In most seed plants, male and female cells unite to produce the fertilized cells from which new plants will develop. But in the banana plant, this cannot happen. The male cells are useless, and the female cells cannot be fertilized. For this reason, the seeds of the banana fruit are useless.

The banana plant, like the strawberry, reproduces by sending forth shoots. The shoots or suckers sprout from the rootstock of the parent banana plant. New banana plants are cultivated by cutting sections of rootstock from old banana plants. If there is an eye in the section of root stock, it will send forth a root system and produce a leafy plant in a new location.

The banana herb lives out its life cycle in about 14 months. The flowerets produce clusters of banana fruit, even though the fruit holds no useful seeds. When the clusters of yellow fingers are ripe, the old plant withers and dies. In the meantime, one or more new plants have started to sprout from the parent rootstock.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book globe to Ronnie Gereny, age 13, of Pittsburgh, Pa., for his question:

What exactly is an isthmus? Right now, a world famous isthmus happens to be in the news. It is, of course, the Isthmus of Panama that joins the large land masses of North and South America. The word isthmus comes from an old Greek word which meant a neck or a narrow corridor.

In geography, the word isthmus means a neck or narrow strip of land. It is a connecting link between two larger land masses, and one of the best examples of an isthmus is the neck of land which joins the two Americas. The famous Isthmus of Panama is a rather new item in geological history. It rose from the sea about 60 million years ago. Before that time, the two Americas were separated by a strip of ocean water.

France Backs China

PARIS (AP)—A foreign ministry spokesman said Tuesday France will support Red China's bid for membership in the United Nations and UN affiliated bodies.

STEACY 'QUALIFIED' FOR POSTING 'ABROAD'

Trade Minister Robert Bonner Tuesday defended a former Social Credit cabinet minister against Opposition charges the minister was a political appointee in San Francisco.

Leo Nimside (NDP—Cranbrook) asked for a report on "the politically set up B.C. House in San Francisco."

Former agriculture minister Newton P. Steacy was appointed there after his election defeat in 1960.

Replied Mr. Bonner: "Any one who has been a minister in this government is well qualified to represent the province abroad."

The statement was greeted by loud cries from the Opposition of "Oh, no."

"Oh yes," said Mr. Bonner. "He has been diligent in his duties and attentive to the objectives of B.C. House."

Rural Saanich Votes on Schools

A $793,000 referendum affecting 23 schools will be put to the ratepayers of school district 63 on Saturday.

Chairman Reginald Sinkinson says the referendum is vital if the rural Saanich school expansion program is "to proceed in such a way that the pattern for future expansion will not be distorted."

In six cases, the program calls for acquiring a site and building a new school.

OFFICES: ANNEXES

School board offices would be enlarged, and four-room annexes built for North Saanich Secondary School, and Mount Newton Junior Secondary School, and Mount Newton Junior Secondary School.

Sixteen school sites would be acquired or developed at a cost of $137,000.

Thirteen schools would be built or rebuilt, and with construction costs for school board office extension, this amounts to $534,000.

Fourteen schools and the school board office need new equipment, estimated at $78,750.

Included in the referendum are estimates for plans and supervision, $22,000; and contingencies, $20,750.

MEET STANDARDS

All sites, construction and equipment specifications fall within provincial standards, and are eligible for provincial grants.

No sites for new schools have yet been decided, school board secretary-treasurer A. G. Blair said.

Secondary and junior secondary schools will be most extensively altered.

At Claremont, plans call for four new classrooms—one for music, one for physics, and two standard—a lunchroom, a blacktop area, new heating and washroom facilities, and some equipment.

North Saanich would get equipment, an enlarged administration area, and an annex.

The four-room annex would have a science room and three standard classrooms, a small administration area, and some equipment.

MOVE HOME EC

The Mount Newton Junior Secondary annex would be almost the same.

At the school itself, plans are to alter and modify the building to move the home economics section under the classroom wing, extend the industrial arts shops, provide offices for a counsellor and the vice-principal, and rewire the staff room.

Art, music and library rooms would be added to Royal Oak Junior Secondary School.

STAFF ROOMS

A new staff room, conversion of the old staff room to more office space, and a blacktop area are also specified.

An expendable two-classroom building on a five-acre site is needed for the Bradley Dyne elementary school to relieve Deep Cove elementary school.

New sites and elementary schools are planned for Prospect Lake, Saanichton and Sayward Road.

'Black Blizzards'

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP)—Black blizzards of drifting topsoil threaten southern Saskatchewan during the next month unless there is a heavy rain or snowfall, G. N. Denike, superintendent of the federal experimental farm here, said last week.

biology, chemistry, physics, electronics, earth science and miscellaneous.

Greater Victoria school board will give medallions and cash prizes of $5 and $10 in each category.

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association will give a grand trophy to the trip winner.

Best senior secondary and best junior secondary exhibits will get special awards and a $15 prize.

In the Montreal fair, final winners will be judged from biological and physical sciences, with one boy and one girl chosen to attend the International Youth Science Fortnight being held in London Aug. 5-18 under patronage of the Duke of Edinburgh.

China Warns U.S. On Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary McNamara will take off for South Viet Nam Thursday night, cool to proposals to carry the war against Communist North Viet Nam. Anything but a "soft liner," McNamara is understood to feel the South Vietnamese forces will win or lose the fight by the way they go about eliminating the Communist insurgents inside their own country. The defence chief is said to believe the Vietnamese lack the capability to carry on a full-scale campaign in South Viet Nam and at the same time strike into the north. McNamara is reported against sending Americans on any such operations into North Viet Nam.

PEKING (Reuters) — Communist China today warned the United States against extending the anti-Communist war in South Viet Nam to North Viet Nam. The official newspaper People's Daily quoted back to advocates of such a policy President Lyndon Johnson's recent warning that "this type of aggression is a deeply dangerous game."

The front-page editorial was printed alongside a note from Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi to his North Vietnamese counterpart, Kuan Thuy, supporting his statement that the U.S. must "bear full responsibility for the serious consequences" if it infringed on North Viet Nam.

Neither the editorial nor the note committed China to intervening if the U.S. undertook military operations against North Viet Nam though they contained a strong implication to this effect.

The editorial said U.S. policy in South Viet Nam was doomed though the process would take time.

TRUSTEES UNDECIDED ON SALARY

School trustees can't make up their own minds if they should get paid, Education Minister Leslie Peterson said Tuesday.

David Stupich (NDP-Nainimo) asked in the legislature if the government had ever considered salaries for "unsung heroes."

"They really haven't been able to make up their minds as to what they want with respect to remuneration—or indeed if they want any," Mr. Peterson replied.

He said discussions have been held about allowing payment on a local option basis, but no agreement was reached.

Unions Join Forces

PORTLAND (AP) — Some 25 officials from five big Pacific Northwest unions agreed Tuesday to work together in their dealings with employers. Represented at the session were the Longshoremen, Teamsters, Pulp and Sulphite Workers, Lumber and Sawmill Workers and International Woodworkers of America. All work in the region's lumber industry.

DEAD SCARED of heights, Police-woman Margaret Clelland in London Tuesday snatched 18-month-old Stewart French from arms of his father, Thomas French, 31, who threatened to jump from 50-foot rooftop with tot in his arms. (AP Wirephoto)

BY SCARED POLICEWOMAN ON ROOFTOP

Child Snatched to Safety

LONDON (UPI) — A pretty, 23-year-old London police-woman, "dead scared of heights" Tuesday rescued a baby boy and his father who had threatened to leap with the child from a 50-foot rooftop ledge.

Policewoman Margaret Clelland kept Thomas French, a 31-year-old garage owner, talking for 90 minutes before she made her life-saving grab. She lunged forward, seized the child from the father's arms and fell backwards onto the roof as hundreds watched from the street below.

Then the policewoman came down from the roof. "I've always been dead scared of heights, but my only thought was to save the child," she said later.

Miss Clelland said every time she tried to get near French he told her, "Don't try to get my baby, or I'll jump."

French told the policewoman his wife had left him, he did not trust anybody, and everything in his life was finished. "The baby was getting hysterical," Miss Clelland said, "and I saw its coat lying on the ground. I said: 'Do you mind if I pick it up and put it on the baby?' I was trying to get near. I suddenly thought: It's him or me. I grabbed the baby and fell back with it in my arms. We fought for the child. I was terrified we would all go over the roof."

Bricks Give Downtown Trees Room to Breathe

Bricklayers are helping Victoria's pavement-bound downtown trees to breathe. Parks department is experimenting with a colored tile type of masonry to replace a vermiculite surface around the base of sidewalk trees planted in the city's beautification scheme.

The vermiculite-concrete mixture worked fine, letting air and water through to the young roots.

But high heels pounding constantly over the surface compacted it and choked off air and moisture.

By laying the tile without mortar, parksmen hope to beat the problem for good. Besides, the varicolored tile helps brighten the drabness of old concrete walks.

The experiment is likely to be extended if no hitches develop, and more trees are going to be planted northward along Douglas to fill existing gaps.

One Man Jailed, Two Fined As Impaired Drivers

Three persons were convicted in city court Monday of impaired driving. One went to jail because it was his second offence and the others were fined.

Gordon McLaughlin, 627 Toronto, was picked up after being seen weaving across the centre line on Fort Feb. 23. A second offender, he was sentenced to 21 days.

Joginder Singh, 562 Sumas, was picked up after a collision at Douglas and Humboldt Feb. 29. He was fined $300.

A fine of $350 was imposed on James Dickie, 1621 Ruby, after he admitted drinking 10 or 15 glasses of beer before driving on Hillside early Sunday.

All three offenders lost their driving licences.

Court Ruling To Be Sought Over Shop-Ins

Shop-ins in Victoria stores are part of a strike which threatens free enterprise, a lawyer representing the Alberta Meat Market said today.

E. E. Pearlman, representing market proprietor John Williams, said he will take every possible action to ensure "those behind this are held responsible."

Mr. Pearlman will seek a court ruling on whether an injunction granted against the Meatcutters' Union last June—preventing picketing or other persuasive activity other than in front of the market at 1811 Cook—can be applied against shop-in "customers."

The "customers" gather supermarket goods in baskets, then refuse to pay for them when they "discover" at the cashier that meat products are from Alberta Meat Market.

Mr. Pearlman said: "It seems the (Meatcutters') union is calling on other unions to assist in putting Mr. Williams out of business."

"We feel we have a duty to those who still believe in free enterprise to see they are not subjected to this kind of persecution."

Mr. Williams is paying journeymen meatcutters $102 per week plus fringes amounting to about $7.

Average wage of wholesale employees at Victoria's entirely non-union processors is $80 per week.

"It should be quite obvious why we have not been able to sign the union area agreement for $10 across the board," he said.

It was the refusal to sign last May that was followed quickly by the layoff of five employees and the striking of another three of the market's 12 employees.

"There is no similar business in Victoria that is unionized," he said. "I've been placed in a position where I'm forced to pay wages substantially in excess of those paid by wholesaling competitors."

Pickets on the few pavement feet in front of the market have walked their way from 6 a.m. to closing time, six days a week since last May 7 into Vancouver Island's longest strike since the miners went out at Nanaimo in 1911, and Woolworth's Port Alberni picket spread through 1961 to 1963.

Since then, Mr. Williams' retail trade, which was 10 per cent of his business, has become "negligible." But he still delivers wholesale supplies to about 35 small grocery stores and about 30 restaurants.

Pickets on the few pavement feet in front of the market have walked their way from 6 a.m. to closing time, six days a week since last May 7 into Vancouver Island's longest strike since the miners went out at Nanaimo in 1911, and Woolworth's Port Alberni picket spread through 1961 to 1963.

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

It's nice for our high school young that, on the invitation of various MLAs, so many of them are able to spend an instructive and edifying afternoon observing their Legislative Assembly in action.

For the sponsoring member, it must be pleasant too—doing his stuff with all those bright, intelligent faces looking down upon him.

On Tuesday, I happened to be up in the peanut gallery with a couple of future voters—even legislators, for all we know—shuffling their big feet behind me.

Funny Head?

Here's a sampling of their muttered conversation:

"Hey! Look! Look at that one with the funny-shaped head."

"You mean the guy with the paper in front of his face?"

"No, the one that looks like he's asleep. . . . Will we have to do an essay on this stuff?"

Lardhead!

I don't offer that as a typical reaction. In fact, I'm sure most of the boys and girls who are exposed to B.C.'s provincial parliament—or British Columbia's, since the premier likes our province spelled in full—are not of a sort with that lard-headed pair.

What I do suggest though, is that in education we are, as one NDP member observed Tuesday afternoon, dealing not with white mice but young human beings.

This being so, I think we'll bypass the froth and frolic that enlivened parliament's first pass at Education Minister Leslie Peterson's estimates, and listen to practical minded Lois Haggen, NDP matron member for Grand Forks-Greenwood.

Gone Ahead

"We want to know what is cooking in education," said she, after a housewife reference to ministerial plans which have been "simmering on the back burners."

She then followed her usual practice of getting down to basics.

"We have a great many confused young people," she said, who are wondering where, in all this big educational program they fit."

Dryly, she noted that the proposed regional junior colleges "are not a reality at the moment."

Then she turned to the vocational schools which weigh heavy in Mr. Peterson's master plan.

"We've gone ahead with equipment and buildings without being quite sure how we're going to use them. . . . We went overboard on highways, and now we're going all out on education. I certainly hope the planning of the years ahead will be sensible, and not just a matter of spending so much money."

Swelled Head

For parents, too, Mrs. Haggen had a warning. Don't, she urged, "make snobs" out of children by over-emphasizing the virtues of accelerated classes with their enriched programs.

"The slow learner," said she, "and this observer couldn't agree more heartily. . . . shouldn't be tormented and humiliated by being used as a social status symbol."

That's it, except for a suggestion to Scored Ralph Lofmark. Please, please, give us lesser brains a break. Say it plain, like Lois Haggen does.

FIDEL PLANTS KISS ON BARRY

HAVANA (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba said early today that he is "rooting for" Senator Barry Goldwater in the U.S. presidential race this year "because I believe he will lose votes that way." He said he "was even ready" to send a contribution.

Popular Sportsman Killed In Pat Bay Highway Crash

Thrown From Car At Intersection

A leading Vancouver Island amateur sportsman was killed instantly this morning in a two-car collision at Weller Road and Pat Bay Highway, just south of Sidney.

Ron Knott, 57, of 913 Sluggett Road, Brentwood, was thrown from his small car after it was struck broadside by a station wagon.

He was pronounced dead at Rest Haven Hospital. He sustained head and leg injuries.

Sidney RCMP said Mr. Knott was proceeding west along Weller when the accident occurred. He stopped for the stop sign at Pat Bay Highway and then drove across the road, police said a witness told them.

As he did so his car was hit by a station wagon driven south on Pat Bay by Robert Dunlop, 11307 Chalet Road, Deep Cove. Mr. Knott's car hit a stop sign and grazed a car that had stopped on Weller, east of the highway.

OUT OTHER SIDE

His car was still on its wheels when it came to rest. Mr. Knott was thrown out the door on the passenger side of his vehicle. He landed only a few feet away from his car.

Mr. Knott, a fuel oil truck driver for Sidney Freight Service Ltd., had gone to the company's office this morning to cash-in. He was on his way home to pick up his truck when the accident occurred shortly after 7 a.m.

His full name was Romilly Lewis Knott but to hundreds of people he was known as Ron. To many people up-Island he personified the Victoria Daily Times.

ON MOTORBIKE

In the late twenties he began the first motorcycle deliveries of the newspaper to the Sidney area and later to up-Island points. In those days he was a familiar figure on the highway as he covered his route on a motorcycle with the papers in a large sidecar. Later he drove a panel delivery.

But to many more people he was known through his work with youngsters and in amateur sports.

He was a good baseball, badminton, softball player and bowler. His coaching is considered mainly responsible for recent successes of the juvenile basketball and softball teams in the Brentwood area.

CHAMPION PITCHER

In his youth he was a member of several B.C. champion softball teams on which he played pitcher. In later years he concentrated on coaching and organizing in juvenile and bantam divisions and youth work was one of his main hobbies.

An outgoing, friendly man, he was described today by one

Castro Offers Compensation; U.S. Excluded

HAVANA (Reuters)—Premier Fidel Castro has excluded the United States from an offer to compensate countries whose properties in Cuba have been nationalized.

The Cuban leader told reporters early today Cuba is willing to pay compensation for foreign properties nationalized by the Cuban government providing the nations concerned pursue a "correct trade policy" towards Cuba.

Britain is following such a policy, he declared, and therefore Cuba is willing to pay indemnification for property of the British-owned Shell Oil Company confiscated after the Cuban revolution in January, 1959.

The U.S. government "does not follow a friendly trade policy toward Cuba."

INCIDENTS CLOSED

Castro said he regarded the incident of the Cuban fishermen seized Feb. 2 for violating U.S. territorial waters and his subsequent decision to shut off the water supply of the American naval base at Guantanamo as closed.

He reiterated Cuba's willingness to resume the water supply, but said the U.S. would first have to indicate it wanted the water turned on again.

The U.S. government is not expected to take up Castro's offer.

Cyprus Force Agreed

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Secretary-General U Thant has formally asked Canada to supply a troop contingent for the planned United Nations peace-keeping force in Cyprus, a UN spokesman announced today.

UNITED NATIONS

(CP)—The United Nations Security Council voted unanimously today to have UN Secretary-General U Thant set up a Cyprus peace force and to name a mediator to seek peace in the island republic.

The Soviet Union cleared the way for the solid vote when it announced it would support the plan despite strong reservations on the provisions for the creation and control of the force.

There also had been some doubt about France's vote, but the French delegate, Roger Seydoux, went along with the others.

Just before the vote the secretary-general told the 11-nation council he was confident he would be able to form the force and that he would get the full co-operation of Cyprus, Britain, Turkey and Greece in the UN peace efforts.

The Soviet position was disclosed by Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko at the opening of the council session.

Fedorenko objected to a provision that the secretary-general would decide on the composition of the proposed force in consultation with Cyprus, Britain, Greece and Turkey. This, he said, would circumvent the Security Council. He also objected to a provision making the commander of the force accountable to the secretary-general and not the council.

SEEKS SEPARATE VOTE

He asked for a separate vote on this whole section of the resolution and stated that he would abstain on it. He declared, however, that in view of the fact that the resolution was acceptable to Cyprus he would vote for the proposal as a whole.

FRANCE ABSTAINS

On the controversial paragraph on procedure for setting up the UN force, France and Czechoslovakia abstained along with the Soviet Union. The other eight voted for it. These were the United States, Britain, Nationalist China and the five sponsors of the resolution—Brazil, Bolivia, Morocco, Ivory Coast and Norway.

SILENT BUT GRAPHIC STORY of tragedy which took life of lighthouse keeper James Heanski was found by Times news team which visited Prevost Island via chartered Fleet Boat today. Body was

Light-Keeper Dies in Blaze

Lighthouse keeper James Heanski, 63, died in a fire which destroyed the residence at Portlock Light on Prevost Island shortly before 10 p.m. Tuesday.

The fire consumed the two-storey frame house in a matter of minutes.

Prevost Island is near the western entrance to Active Pass in the Gulf Islands.

Cause of the fire was being probed today by RCMP from Ganges Harbor, and Department of Transport officials.

One theory is that Mr. Heanski had a heart seizure and knocked over a lamp. Another is that a fuel oil tank exploded.

An eyewitness at Port Washington, on North Pender Island directly east of Prevost Island, Mrs. Virginia Shirley, said there was a "terrific explosion" at about 9:15.

"At first I thought there had been an earthquake," she said. "I rushed out and looked across the water, and saw there was a fierce blaze at Portlock Light."

BODY FOUND

Mr. Heanski's badly burned body was found in the charred remains of a chair in what had been the living room of the residence.

The house in which Mr. Heanski died was about 100 yards from the light and fog bell at Portlock Point, one of the key aids to navigation on the busy Active Pass route to and from the mainland.

DOT technicians today transferred the light to an automatic,

Fire Witness:

'FERRIES COULD ONLY STAND BY'

Many Victorians had a grand stand view of a spectacular fire on Prevost Island Tuesday night in which a lighthouse keeper died. They were on board the government ferry Princess of Esquimalt which hove to when the blaze was noticed. One of them was Times publisher Stuart Keate. This is his story:

By STUART KEATE

In the best traditions of the sea, four ships hove to off Portlock light last night to offer assistance—but there was little they could do.

By 9:50 p.m. it was obvious that the light-keeper's house was doomed.

LIGHTS SWEPT ROCK

Ships' searchlights swept the rocky headland and the adjacent forests. Passengers aboard our ship moved out of comfortable saloons into the chill night air to observe the fiery spectacle.

By 10 p.m., the flames were rising 20 feet or more in the sky.

Somebody murmured: "There's no fire-fighting equipment there; no water."

So all we could do was watch.

HOFFA GUILTY IN 'FIX'

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters union, was convicted today on two charges of seeking to fix the jury which tried him on a conspiracy charge in 1962.

The jury acquitted him on a third charge.

Also convicted were three men on trial with him—Ewing King and Thomas E. Parks of Nashville and Larry Campbell of Detroit.

Hoffa sat motionless, his face a grim mask, as jury foreman Hal W. Bullen of Chattanooga read the verdict. It was his first conviction in five federal trials dating back to 1957.

Ruby Sat With Fixed Stare On Hearing of JFK Death

DALLAS (AP)—A pretty secretary testified today Jack Ruby sat with a fixed stare for two minutes shortly after the news broke that President Kennedy had been assassinated in Dallas.

The witness, Georgia Mayor, said in answer to defence questions that his appearance and action were remarkable and sufficiently unusual to draw her attention.

She is a secretary in the advertising department of The Dallas Morning News. Co-workers said they noted very little, if any, change in Ruby when he heard the news. He was in the office composing an advertisement.

Ruby is charged with slaying Lee Harvey Oswald, accused as the assassin of Kennedy. The defence sought to support by questioning its contention that the slaying of the president shocked Ruby into a mental blackout during which he killed Oswald.

The state seeks to prove that Ruby's actions were normal. John Newnam, a retail advertising salesman for the newspaper, told of finding Ruby at his desk when he returned to his office shortly after noon Nov. 22.

Newnam told how, upon word of Kennedy's assassination, those in his office rushed for a small television set. Among them was Ruby.

"Was there anything unusual about his behavior?" Newnam was asked by the prosecution.

"No more unusual than anyone else," he replied.

Hope th' man who forecast wet snow is all wet.

Well, Dag nab it if it doesn't look like we might have a winner hidin' in th' Brier patch.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

They had an unusual item on the lunch-time menu at Eaton's restaurant Tuesday:

Grilled Fllet of Soul.

This upset some of the diners and one of them spoke to a waitress about it. The manager came over and apologized and all of the mimeographed copies of the menu were withdrawn for correction.

Donald MacMillan, 1148 Esquimalt Road, will finally get a sidewalk in front of his corner lot after two years of trying, but he'll have to foot the bill.

He has petitioned Esquimalt council twice to have the sidewalk built, but other residents in the 1100 block have petitioned against the move.

His will be the only piece of property in the block with a cement sidewalk.

He told council it was "impossible" to keep his boulevard decent because it is always being trampled by children on their way to Esquimalt Sports Centre across the street. He said he would gladly pay $135 for 65 feet of sidewalk "because you don't have to cut, trim or fertilize cement."

When Oak Bay council decided it was time to come out of the committee of the whole and conduct its affairs in public, it meant business.

Latest step in this direction is installation of microphones and tape recorders in the outside chamber.

Randolph Burgoyne of Mount Douglas High and Steve Sigby of Oak Bay High have been named local winners in Time Magazine's high school current affairs contest.

Other leading students at Mount Douglas were Wayne Lakbert, Gary Hayman, Susan Ford and Gary Burgess.

Jack MacDonald, Jack Sommers, Dorothy Dale and John Ritchie were also among high-scoring students at Oak Bay.

Top scorers will receive a world globe or a book prize. Test consisted of 105 questions on national and foreign affairs and other categories such as business, sports, science and religion.

Even in this day and age, some people are still scornful of such things as subconscious disorders of the mind, repressions and complexes.

After viewing the screen biography of Dr. Sigmund Freud in the Royal Theatre Tuesday, a man exclaimed: "They're all a bunch of nuts!"

If you're wondering what Charles Bendall is doing these days, he's surfing in Australia.

Mr. Bendall, a retired squadron leader in the RCAF, left Canada for "Down Under" 11 years ago.

He and his wife, Marg, spend much of their time surfing. They were recently honored by a two-page spread in the Australian magazine "Boardrider" and dubbed "the grandmammy and grandpappy of all boardriders." (They are grandparents, and they're both over 50).

Charles is the brother of Fred Bendall, 512 Fraser Street.

FERRIES

There was no sign of life ashore.

Curiously, the red lighthouse stood out on a point in front of the holocaust, blinking in the night as if to call attention to something much larger and more dramatic than itself.

The Esquimalt's engine seemed to drift to a halt at about 9:45 p.m.

A voice came over the ship's speaker: "If there is a doctor aboard, please report to the ship's steward."

This puzzled us. Why had the ship stopped?

SPOTTED FIRE

Then, looking forward on the port beam, we spotted the fire.

We assumed that somebody was being taken off Prevost Island and might need treatment for exposure.

As our ship manoeuvred—very expertly—the Portlock light and fire turned up on our starboard beam.

MOVED CLOSE

We admired the way in which a smaller ship—the Queen of the Islands—moved in close to shore to light up the area and offer aid to survivors.

But apparently there were none.

And no passenger came forward to say: "I'm the doctor."

By the time we landed at Swartz Bay the light-keeper's house was a tiny, smouldering glow.

HOFFA

Hoffa could receive a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a fine of $10,000. The others could receive up to five years and $5,000 each.

Hoffa, Parks and Campbell were convicted of offering a $10,000 bribe to the son of a Negro juror in the 1962 trial.

Campbell is business agent for the Detroit Teamsters local, of which Hoffa is president. Parks, a handyman, is Campbell's uncle. Both Campbell and Parks are Negroes.

Hoffa and King, former Nashville Teamsters president, were convicted of offering a promotion in the Tennessee highway patrol to a state trooper whose wife was on the Nashville jury.

The jurors acquitted Hoffa on a charge in which he was accused of aiding and abetting two businessmen in trying to rig the jury. The businessmen, Nicholas Tweel of Huntington, W.Va., and Allen Dorfman of Chicago, also were acquitted.

The jury deliberated a total of five hours and 40 minutes, after receiving the case Tuesday night.

NDP Fights On Alone Against Columbia Pact

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Approval of the Canada-U.S. Columbia River treaty appears assured in this session of parliament, but not before a tough and bitter fight.

Battle lines on the issue were drawn in the Commons Tuesday as debate opened on a government resolution referring the treaty and its revisions to the House external affairs committee for study.

The official Conservative opposition indicated a qualified support of the treaty and the 11-man Social Credit group pledged its full support, more than enough voting power to assure the minority Liberal government of treaty approval.

But a promise that the treaty would not get through without an extended battle was hurled at the government by New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas.

GREAT BETRAYAL

"We will do everything in our power," declared Mr. Douglas Tuesday night, "to prevent this parliament giving its assent to what we consider a great betrayal of the interests of the people of B.C. and of Canada."

He charged that the treaty was "conceived in avarice and born in apathy," that "sharp Yankee traders took our naive and inexperienced Canadian negotiators for suckers."

"This treaty and this protocol," Mr. Douglas asserted, "means that we are selling our birthright for a mess of pottage largely to satisfy the vanity of a provincial premier and to meet the needs of a power-hungry and water-hungry neighbor to the south."

Mr. Douglas seemed to be giving support to earlier threats by H. W. Herridge (NDP-Kootenay West) that the 17-member NDP group in the house might launch a filibuster in an attempt to defeat the treaty.

OCT. 1 TARGET

Observers here believe such filibustering tactics—in both the committee and later in the House when the government introduces a resolution asking final approval of the treaty—could considerably delay treaty ratification. But there is no conviction that a filibuster could delay ratification beyond the Oct. 1 deadline set by the government.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who led the Canadian negotiators who obtained U.S. agreement to treaty modifications, opened the debate Tuesday with an appeal for speedy parliamentary approval of the pact.

Speaking in the debate for the Conservative party, Stuart Fleming (Okanagan-Revelstoke) said his party doesn't intend "to obstruct or hinder the passage of the treaty through the committee, but we do reserve the right, and will use the right, to scrutinize all the terms of the agreement, particularly the protocol, with the greatest care."

BLASTS GRITS

Then he blasted the Liberals for having "stalled" Columbia development when they were in office prior to 1957; for having contributed, while they were in opposition, to the breakdown in agreement between the then Conservative government and the B.C. government; and for having "vilified" the Conservatives and their treaty, then, on achieving office, turning about and endorsing substantially the same treaty.

The only change in principle, he said, was adoption by the Liberals of the B.C. government's proposal that B.C.'s share of downstream power benefits be sold in the U.S.

The reason for this, he said,

was that Premier Bennett was going ahead with Peace River development first.

"I think the people of B.C. are entitled to know whether they are going to get the Peace River power," Mr. Fleming stated, which is supposed to make these downstream power benefits surplus, at the same cost as the downstream benefits."

"Or are they going to be asked to pay 10, 12 or 14 mills for it?"

THOROUGHLY BAD

NDP leader Douglas said the treaty was "a thoroughly bad treaty."

"As someone has said, this treaty is very much like an old hag putting on lipstick and rouge, not so much to enhance her beauty but to hide her ugliness," he said.

Mr. Douglas also flayed the Liberals. During the last two federal election campaigns, he said, they were saying the treaty was a "sell-out, the export of jobs and a betrayal to the interests of the United States."

"Now, overnight, it has become a good treaty," he scoffed.

"I want to tell the house that if we are so forgetful of our duty as to ratify this treaty, the day will come in Canada when generations not very far distant from today will curse the day that the Parliament of Canada gave away this great heritage of the Canadian people."

They Like It Without

UNLESS you climb to the ridgepole which tops my roof, and is a good 30 feet above the ground on the sea side, you can't see Trial Island from my home. So it won't make much difference to my view if they put a transmitter, with towers there—not as long as I'm shore-based.

Just the same I have a definite sympathy for other waterfront people who look daily at the island and are indignant over plans to erect these aids to radio on the rock.

Like Professor Higgins in "My Fair Lady," they've grown accustomed to her face. They don't want it marred by what they consider an improper commercial intrusion—a sort of wart on her nose.

It never occurred to me that Trial was beautiful, though I've cherished it since I was a kid from associations there over almost half a century. Even when Jack Shadbolt did the mural of it to illustrate the Cadborosaurus legend concocted by a gifted writing friend, the picture struck me as more interesting than lovely. It still seems that way to me now that it's hanging on the wall of the Victoria Press business office.

I like the picture because of the frankness with which Jack discussed it in the process of composition.

Jack explained that an artist derived satisfaction from expressing on canvas the ideas of a particular subject inspired in him. This was creation and if somebody paid for it as well, all the better. Artists, he said, like to eat also.

It would take someone far more accomplished than I to define its artistic merit, but, having looked at the island continuously as a gauge to the speed of the tide when I'm fishing out there, I can recognize the masses in the mural, adapted as they are into the composition.

To what degree towers would detract from the visual appeal of the island, I don't know. But I do know that a lot of people who have made it their own by appreciation of its place in the seascape don't want the towers. I think they deserve consideration.

They are taxed of assessments that are high because they have seafarers' lots. They pay the extra and they have reason to expect the amenities that make the property desirable to them. I'd guess they aren't much impressed by the argument that towers are part of the march of progress. They're more likely to see them as part of the march of commercialism to higher earnings for somebody else.

In other parts of the world you can look at slag heaps that are part of the price of progress—slag heaps that now adorn what was once attractive countryside and slag heaps that are the inevitable evidence of wealth someone took out of the ground.

Sure there's a difference between slag heaps and radio towers. But the difference, in the eyes of those who want Trial the way it is now is a matter of degree.

My attachment to the island goes back to those kid days when the Okells ran the light-house and when the rabbits they kept escaped to run wild on the island. I caught one once and enjoyed its short-lived companionship. Stan Whitwell found that they attracted mink and shot enough of the fancy fur-bearers to make his wife a cape.

Those were the days when Okell's cow used to look for greener pastures, swim the channel to Little Trial and then the longer stretch of water to the golf links. The grass was appealing there. Then Bill Grant and the Whitwell boys with Okell would collect a special little snow from its moorings off our place, tow it to the links and recapture the cow. Sometimes the cow would stay on the island for a week between trips.

I remember the peacocks that bloomed on the island, the chocolate lilies, the wild strawberries, the small briar roses, tiny agates you found in the shingle and loads of bark at the tideline. A lot of what I recall is still there.

So I understand why waterfront folk want Trial to stay as it is as long as it can. I think the authorities should appreciate their sentiment too.

Defence Budget Fails to Meet Hellyer's Aim

By MAX MANNING

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer's initial efforts to cut the armed forces' house-keeping costs to free more funds for purchase of new weapons and equipment seem to have been frustrated.

But, informants say, the minister has only begun to fight. Mr. Hellyer has wrung a major concession from the treasury board, the cabinet committee which decides on all federal expenditures. The concession: Any savings the defence department makes in house-keeping costs can be spent on new weapons and equipment.

Informants said Tuesday such savings aren't likely to be large, at least not immediately, but that the plan provides an incentive for the services to slice operations and maintenance costs.

TOTAL TRIMMED
The 1964-65 defence budget, presented to Parliament Tuesday, amounts to $1,525,000,000 or $109,000,000 less than that of the current fiscal year which ends March 31.

More than half this reduction—$56,000,000—is due to a slash in the equipment account. This is the exact opposite policy Mr. Hellyer was arguing at

The department for months has been saying that the aim was to raise spending on new weapons and equipment to 20 to 25 per cent of the defence budget. The percentage in 1963-64 was 16 per cent, and now it has fallen to 13.4 per cent.

The appropriations for operations and maintenance were also cut, but by a smaller amount: $39,000,000. Upkeep in 1964-65 is $1,125,000 compared with $204,000,000 for new equipment.

KEEP PLUGGING
Mr. Hellyer's aides said the minister is determined to keep plugging away at reductions in operations and maintenance, partly through more armed forces integration measures.

They conceded that this may be a long haul. Mr. Hellyer will present to Parliament soon a white paper outlining a 10-year defence plan.

'World Gov't Only Means Of Defence'

The answer to defence in the age of aircraft and guided missiles is world government, says Prof. C. S. Burchill of Royal Roads.

Prof. Burchill, national president of the World Federalist Movement, told the University of Victoria's peace club and political science forum that the concept of the defensible political unit has disappeared.

The logical answer is a world government based on the federal system, he said.

Certain changes in the charter and operation of the United Nations could be made for a seat of government.

Disputes between nations could be settled by a strengthened court of international justice, and a world police force of about 500,000 men could be set up.

He said it would cost far less than the world's present total military expenditure.

This "fourth level" of government, Prof. Burchill said, would mean income tax reductions and a longer life expectancy for Canadians.

NO HOPE OF FRENCH POLICY CHANGE

U.S. Digs In for De Gaulle Seige

An AP News Analysis

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials have about given up trying to analyse the motives of French President Charles de Gaulle and resigned themselves to a long period of strain and increasing tension in relations between Washington and Paris.

The latest French manoeuvre in demanding Red Chinese admission to the UN World Health Organization is but one of a series which has already created a bad split in NATO and which may be followed by other moves as yet unforeseen here.

The Washington policy for dealing with this situation seems to be essentially a policy of containment aimed at trying to prevent the split in the alliance from becoming worse.

It also is aimed at trying to blot the thrust of de Gaulle's diplomacy as far as it may affect the policies and attitudes of other countries in issues like the recognition of the Communist regime in China.

After news was received at the White House and state department Tuesday that France was supporting a Red Chinese seat in the World Health Organization, the U.S. delegation to W.H.O. had "actively and successfully opposed the challenge of the Republic of China's (Nationalist China's) credentials." It added "we will continue to do this in every UN body."

CAN'T CHANGE HIM

Officials said privately that it is impossible to try to get de Gaulle's position changed in any fundamental way.

He has embarked on a course of action sharply at variance with that which the United States would like to see develop at many points, and the view here is that as long as he controls destinies of France he intends to stick to it fully.

A little more than a month ago the French government recognized the Communist government at Peking and notified the Nationalist government on Formosa that it no longer had any reason for maintaining an embassy in Paris.

This forced the Nationalists to break relations with France and removed the last obstacle to an exchange of ambassadors between France and Red China.

De Gaulle followed recognition by calling for a solution of the problems of Southeast Asia through neutralization and has pushed this policy despite the fact that the United States has strongly opposed it as far as it applies to South Viet Nam.

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Compost to the Rescue

Ground frost was fairly general over the Victoria area during the last 10 days of February, causing the saturated soil in most gardens to "heave" considerably.

This condition, followed by the heavy rainfall on Saturday, has resulted in the loosened soil being washed away from around plants.

Especially is this true in the better drained areas where gardeners took advantage of the fine weather to catch up on the planting of trees, shrubs, fruits, and the sowing of a few early vegetable seeds.

On sloping ground the flow of surface water took loosened soil with it, and in level gardens the recently disturbed soil sank as the water passed through, leaving some plants in a pitifully high and dry state.

At times like this the compost heaps are appreciated and the experienced gardener promptly makes a mixture of compost and sand to put around the plants which have been affected.

Especially is this true in the

Strawberries planted last fall have not yet made an anchoring root system and therefore require frequent mulching and pressing back into the soil over the first winter.

The primula is another plant whose roots are exposed by winter frost and rains, sometimes causing many casualties and invariably reducing the quality and quantity of flowers unless regularly checked.

Substitutes for compost are well-rotted manure, rotted to the state of a brown mold, dry soil if some was placed under cover last fall, or peat moss as a last resort.

LIGHT RAY RIFLE MADE FOR U.S. ARMY

BOSTON (AP)—A lightweight Laser rifle, which shoots a destructive light ray instead of bullets, has been developed by Maser Optics, Inc., and turned over to the army. It was announced Tuesday. The rifle's ray, the firm said, is not enough to inflict serious bodily harm but could set fire to a soldier's clothes. It could also blind someone at ranges of up to a mile. Another use, say Maser officials, could be to ignite explosive fuses or set fires.

Just about the edgiest group of people in the U.S. these days are the stock market players. Despite the fact the Dow-Jones index has risen 100 points in the last 10 days, the market is still a long way from the peak it reached in 1929. The market is still a long way from the peak it reached in 1929. The market is still a long way from the peak it reached in 1929.

The important point about the mutual funds' managers is that their judgment has a strong influence on the market. They control investments totaling about $25 billion, most of it in common stocks.

Canadian markets have not been nearly as volatile as American markets but many Canadian investment advisers are calling for a downturn.

If there is a break at New York and some of the experts see a correction as large as 10 per cent—the Canadian markets will undoubtedly reflect it even though there is considerable money in the market.

The Rockwell-Standard company of the U.S. certainly knew what it was doing when it bought a 75 per cent interest in Ontario Steel Products Co.

Ontario Steel's quarterly report to Dec. 31 shows net earnings of $636,795 or 79 cents per common share.

ings of $636,795 or 79 cents per common share. End of the fiscal year was changed to Dec. 31 from Sept. 30. Net earnings for the full year to Sept. 30 were $1,609,807 or $1.85 a share compared with only $919,021 or $1.20 a share for fiscal 1962.

Retained earnings were $5,514,734 at Dec. 31 and ratio of current assets to current liabilities was two to one.

Massey-Ferguson Ltd. net income for the first quarter ended Jan. 31 was $5,666,000 or 39 cents a share compared with $2,052,000 or 14 cents a share for the same period a year ago, president A. A. Thornebrough told the 117th annual meeting.

Sales totalled $145,500,000 compared with $110,369,000. The company expects to spend $45 million on capital expenditures in 1964.

Total Canadian bond financing for February was $137,754,000.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prices were irregular and export interest appeared quiet today on the Winnipeg grain exchange. United States grain market weakness was reflected here.	CHICAGO (AP)—The March soybean contract was the only significant gainer today in a generally weak grain futures market in which old crop wheat sold off sharply.

Peace Force Under Thant

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Secretary-General U Thant has formally asked Canada to supply a troop contingent for the planned United Nations peace-keeping force in Cyprus, a UN spokesman announced today.

(In Ottawa External Affairs Minister Martin said in the Commons today that Canada is seeking additional information from the UN before deciding whether to participate in an international peace force for Cyprus.)

In Our HOUSE

By Arthur Mayse

It's nice for our high school young that, on the invitation of various MLAs, so many of them are able to spend an instructive and edifying afternoon observing their Legislative Assembly in action.

For the sponsoring member, it must be pleasant too—doing his stuff with all those bright, intelligent faces looking down upon him.

On Tuesday, I happened to be up in the peanut gallery with a couple of future voters—even legislators, for all we know—shuffling their big feet behind me.

Funny Head?

Here's a sampling of their muttered conversation:

"Hey! Look! Look at that one with the funny-shaped head."

"You mean the guy with the paper in front of his face?"

"No, the one that looks like he's asleep. . . . Will we have to do an essay on this stuff?"

Lardhead!

I don't offer that as a typical reaction. In fact, I'm sure most of the boys and girls who are exposed to B.C.'s provincial parliament—or British Columbia's, since the premier likes our province spelled in full—are not of a sort with that lard-headed pair.

What I do suggest though, is that in education we are, as one NDP member observed Tuesday afternoon, dealing not with white mice but young human beings.

U.S. CANCELS FLEET VISIT

ATHENS (AP)—More anti-American demonstrations flared in Greece today and the U.S. Embassy announced that a visit to Athens Thursday by ships of the U.S. Sixth Fleet has been cancelled.

An embassy spokesman said the cancellation was requested by the Greek government.

Anti-American and anti-British sentiment has been running high in Greece over the Cyprus issue.

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations Security Council voted unanimously today to have UN Secretary-General U Thant set up a Cyprus peace force and to name a mediator to seek peace in the island republic.

The Soviet Union cleared the way for the solid vote when it announced it would support the plan despite strong reservations on the provisions for the creation and control of the force.

There also had been some doubt about France's vote, but the French delegate, Roger Seydoux, went along with the others.

Just before the vote the secretary-general told the 11-nation council he was confident he would be able to form the force and that he would get the full co-operation of Cyprus, Britain, Turkey and Greece in the UN peace efforts.

The Soviet position was disclosed by Ambassador Nikolai N. Fedorenko at the opening of the council session.

Fedorenko objected to a provision that the secretary-general would decide on the composition of the proposed force in consultation with Cyprus, Britain, Greece and Turkey. This, he said, would circumvent the Security Council. He also objected to a provision making the commander of the force accountable to the secretary-general and not the council.

SEEKS SEPARATE VOTE

He asked for a separate vote on this whole section of the resolution and stated that he would abstain on it. He declared, however, that in view of the fact that the resolution was acceptable to Cyprus he would vote for the proposal as a whole.

FRANCE ABSTAINS

On the controversial paragraph on procedure for setting up the UN force, France and Czechoslovakia abstained along with the Soviet Union. The other eight voted for it. These were the United States, Britain, Nationalist China and the five sponsors of the resolution—Brazil, Bolivia, Morocco, Ivory Coast and Norway.

The council resolution puts a three-month time limit on the force.

Light Snow Predicted Overnight

Snow—just the lightest dusting of it, according to the weatherman—will fall on Victoria's higher points overnight.

However, precipitation will mainly be showers tonight and Thursday morning, with the temperature hovering around the same level.

Low for tonight is 37 degrees, and high Thursday 47.

The weather office predicts a gradual clearing Thursday and Friday before another storm moves in from the Pacific.

But it will bring no snow. "We're still looking for winter," the weatherman said.

Light-Keeper Dies in Blaze

'FERRIES COULD ONLY STAND BY'

Many Victorians had a grand stand view of a spectacular fire on Prevost Island Tuesday night in which a lighthouse keeper died. They were on board the government ferry Queen of Esquimalt which hove to when the blaze was noticed. One of them was Times publisher Stuart Keate. This is his story:

By STUART KEATE

In the best traditions of the sea, four ships hove to off Portlock light last night to offer assistance—but there was little they could do.

By 9:50 p.m. it was obvious that the light-keeper's house was doomed.

The inner struts and beams of the home could be seen blazing furiously.

LIGHTS SWEEP ROCK

Ships' searchlights swept the rocky headland and the adjacent forests. Passengers aboard our ship moved out of comfortable saloons into the chill night air to observe the fiery spectacle.

By 10 p.m., the flames were rising 20 feet or more in the sky.

Somebody murmured: "There's no fire-fighting equipment there; no water." So all we could do was watch.

FINAL BULLETINS

B.C. Wins Fifth Straight at Brier

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—British Columbia, playing what skip Lyle Hagg described as "our best game," trimmed New Brunswick 10-6 today and remained undefeated after five rounds in the Canadian curling championship.

In another key game, Saskatchewan defeated Alberta 8-5 to also stay undefeated.

Power Failure Hits Esquimalt

About two-thirds of Esquimalt was blacked out for 25 minutes starting at 2 p.m. today.

B.C. Hydro officials at press time had not determined the cause but suspected heavy winds blew down a number of power lines.

Most of the power was restored at 2:30 p.m.

Tornado Kills One In Arkansas

MAGNOLIA, Ark. (AP)—A tornado ripped through the Beech Creek community northwest of Magnolia just before dawn today. Police said one person was killed and seven injured.

Pair Admit Selling Phoney Paintings

TORONTO (CP)—Leslie W. Lewis, 61, and Neil Sharkey, 30, Toronto art dealers, today pleaded guilty to conspiracy to defraud the public by selling fake paintings attributed to noted Canadian artists.

They also face 68 charges of fraud in connection with the same phoney paintings.

Tug Abandons Wrecked Tanker

HALIFAX (UPI)—The Foundation tug Valiant today headed for Bermuda, leaving the wreckage of the Liberian tanker Amphalos abandoned and adrift in a strong Atlantic gale.

Foundation maritime manager Hugh Milroy said it was impracticable to attempt salvage.

'Pro' Curling Code Voted Down

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—An impassioned, 23-minute speech by a Saskatchewan jurist today helped swing opposition successfully against a code that would have created a professional tag for Canada's premier curling talent.

Chief Justice E. M. Culliton's motion to table a motion setting up the code in effect killing the measure for at least another year—was adopted by a snap vote of 24 to 19 with at least five abstentions.

Unionist Could Get Ten Years

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters union, was convicted today on two charges of seeking to fix the jury which tried him on a conspiracy charge in 1962.

The jury acquitted him on a third charge.

Also convicted were three men on trial with him—Ewing King and Thomas E. Parks of Nashville and Larry Campbell of Detroit.

Hoffa sat motionless, his face a grim mask, as jury foreman Hal W. Bullen of Chattanooga read the verdict. It was his first conviction in five federal trials dating back to 1957.

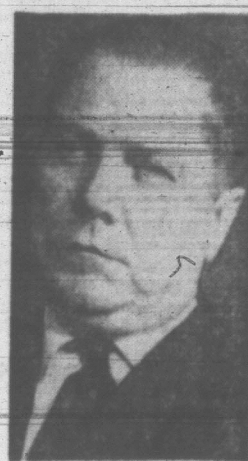

Hoffa could receive a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and a fine of $10,000. The others could receive up to five years and $5,000 each.

Hoffa, Parks and Campbell were convicted of offering a $10,000 bribe to the son of a Negro juror in the 1962 trial.

Campbell is business agent for the Detroit Teamsters local, of which Hoffa is president. Parks, a handyman, is Campbell's uncle. Both Campbell and Parks are Negroes.

Hoffa and King, former Nashville Teamsters president, were convicted of offering a promotion in the Tennessee highway patrol to a state trooper whose wife was on the Nashville jury.

The jurors acquitted Hoffa on a charge in which he was accused of aiding and abetting two businessmen in trying to rig the jury. The businessmen, Nicholas Tweel of Huntington, W.Va., and Allen Dorfman of Chicago, also were acquitted.

The jury deliberated a total of five hours and 40 minutes, after receiving the case Tuesday night.

Sportsman Dies In Two-Car Crash

A leading Vancouver Island amateur sportsman was killed instantly this morning in a two-car collision at Weiler Road and Pat Bay Highway, just south of Sidney.

Ron Knott, 57, of 913 Sluggert Road, Brentwood, was thrown from his small car after it was struck broadside by a station wagon.

He was pronounced dead at Rest Haven Hospital. He sustained head and leg injuries.

Sidney RCMP said Mr. Knott was proceeding west along Weiler when the accident occurred. He stopped for the stop sign at Pat Bay Highway and then drove across the road, police said a witness told them.

As he did so his car was hit by a station wagon driven south on Pat Bay by Robert Dunlop, 11307 Chale Road, Deep Cove. Mr. Knott's car hit a stop sign and grazed a car that had stopped on Weiler, east of the highway.

RON KNOTT

OUT OTHER SIDE

His car was still on its wheels when it came to rest. Mr. Knott was thrown out the door on the passenger side of his vehicle. He landed only a few feet away from his car.

Mr. Knott, a fuel oil truck driver for Sidney Freight Service Ltd., had gone to the company's office this morning to cash-in. He was on his way home to pick up his truck when the accident occurred shortly after 7 a.m.

His full name was Romilly Lewis Knott but to hundreds of people he was known as Ron. To many people up-Island he personified the Victoria Daily Times.

ON MOTORBIKE

In the late twenties he began the first motorcycle deliveries of the newspaper to the Sidney area and later to up-Island points. In those days he was a familiar figure on the highway as he covered his route on a motorcycle with the papers in a large sidecar. Later he drove a panel delivery.

But to many more people he was known through his work with youngsters and in amateur sports.

He was a good baseball, badminton, softball player and bowler. His coaching is considered mainly responsible for recent successes of the juvenile basketball and softball teams in the Brentwood area.

CHAMPION PITCHER

In his youth he was a member of several B.C. champion softball teams on which he played pitcher. In later years he concentrated on coaching and organizing in juvenile and bantam divisions and youth work was one of his main hobbies.

An outgoing, friendly man, he was described today by one who knew him as "happy-go-lucky." Mr. Knott was born in England. He left The Times in 1950 to work for Sidney Freight.

CHAIRMAN

He was chairman of Central Saanich Recreation Commission and a council member of

They had an unusual item on the lunch-time menu at Eaton's restaurant Tuesday: Grilled Filet of Soul.

This upset some of the diners and one of them spoke to a waitress about it. The manager came over and apologized and all of the mimeographed copies of the menu were withdrawn for correction.

Donald MacMillan, 1148 Esquimalt Road, will finally get a sidewalk in front of his corner lot after two years of trying, but he'll have to foot the bill.

He has petitioned Esquimalt council twice to have the sidewalk built, but other residents in the 1100 block have petitioned against the move.

This will be the only piece of property in the block with a cement sidewalk.

He told council it was "impossible" to keep his boulevard decent because it is always being trampled by children on their way to Esquimalt Sports Centre across the street.

He said he would gladly pay $135 for 65 feet of sidewalk because you don't have to cut, trim or fertilize cement.

When Oak Bay council decided it was time to come out of the committee of the whole and conduct its affairs in public, it meant business.

Latest step in this direction is installation of microphones and tape recorders in the outside chamber.

Randolph Burgoyne of Mount Douglas High and Steve Bishby of Oak Bay High have been named local winners in Time Magazine's high school current affairs contest.

Other leading students at Mount Douglas were Wayne Lakbert, Gary Hayman, Susan Ford and Gary Burgess. Jack MacDonald, Jack Sommers, Dorothy Dale and John Ritchie were also among high-scoring students at Oak Bay.

Top scorers will receive a world globe or a book prize. Test consisted of 105 questions on national and foreign affairs and other categories such as business, sports, science and religion.

Even in this day and age, some people are still scornful of such things as subconscious disorders of the mind, regressions and complexes.

After viewing the screen biography of Dr. Sigmund Freud in the Royal Theatre Tuesday, a man exclaimed: "They're all a bunch of nuts!"

If you're wondering what Charles Bendall is doing these days, he's surfing in Australia.

Mr. Bendall, a retired squadron leader in the RCAF, left Canada for "Down Under" 14 years ago.

He and his wife, Marg, spend much of their time surfing. They were recently honored by a two-page spread in the Australian magazine "Boardrider" and dubbed "the grandmammy and grandpappy of all boardriders." (They are grandparents, and they're both over 50).

Charles is the brother of Fred Bendall, 512 Fraser Street.

FERRIES WIRE BRIEFS

There was no sign of life ashore.

Curiously, the red lighthouse stood off on a point, in front of the holocaust, blinking in the night as if to call attention to something much larger and more dramatic than itself. The Esquimalt's engines seemed to drift to a halt at about 9:45 p.m.

A voice came over the ship's speaker: "If there is a doctor aboard, please report to the ship's steward."

This puzzled us. Why had the ship stopped?

SPOTTED FIRE

Then, looking forward on the port beam, we spotted the fire.

We assumed that somebody was being taken off Prevost Island and might need treatment for exposure.

As our ship manoeuvred—very expertly—the Portlock light and fire turned up on our starboard beam.

MOVED CLOSE

We admired the way in which a smaller ship—the Queen of the Islands—moved in close to shore to light up the area and offer aid to survivors.

But apparently there were none.

And no passenger came forward to say: "I'm the doctor."

By the time we landed at Swartz Bay the light-keeper's house was a tiny, smouldering glow.

UN force. During this time, the mediator will seek to bring together the feuding factions.

The peace-keeping force would be composed of some 9,000 to 10,000 men, drawn from Commonwealth and non-aligned countries and built around a British contingent.

Britain has more than 5,000 men on peace-keeping duty in its former colony in the Mediterranean but the Cyprus government has indicated it would like to see this number reduced. Diplomatic sources said Thant has made advance soundings among a number of delegations on whether they would be able to contribute to a force.

They said the countries approached include Canada, Sweden, Finland, Norway, The Netherlands, Brazil, the Republic of Ireland, India and Yugoslavia.

N.Z. Offer Increased

LONDON (Reuters)—Publisher Roy Thomson said today his organization is stepping up its offer for the New Zealand daily newspaper The Dominion.

Castro Offers Compensation; U.S. Excluded

HAVANA (Reuters)—Premier Fidel Castro has excluded the United States from an offer to compensate countries whose properties in Cuba have been nationalized.

The Cuban leader told reporters early today Cuba is willing to pay compensation for foreign properties nationalized by the Cuban government providing the nations concerned pursue a "correct trade policy" towards Cuba.

Britain is following such a policy, he declared, and therefore Cuba is willing to pay indemnification for property of the British-owned Shell Oil Company confiscated after the Cuban revolution in January, 1959.

The U.S. government "does not follow a friendly trade policy toward Cuba."

INCIDENTS CLOSED

Castro said he regarded the incident of the Cuban fishermen seized Feb. 2 for violating U.S. territorial waters and his subsequent decision to shut off the water supply of the American naval base at Guantanamo as closed.

He reiterated Cuba's willingness to resume the water supply, but said the U.S. would first have to indicate it wanted the water turned on again.

The U.S. government is not expected to take up Castro's offer.

NDP Fights On Alone Against Columbia Pact

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Approval of the Canada-U.S. Columbia River treaty appears assured in this session of parliament, but not before a tough and bitter fight.

Battle lines on the issue were drawn in the Commons Tuesday as debate opened on a government resolution referring the treaty and its revisions to the House external affairs committee for study.

The official Conservative opposition indicated qualified support of the treaty and the 11-man Social Credit group pledged its full support—more than enough voting power to assure the minority Liberal government of treaty approval.

But a promise that the treaty would not get through without an extended battle was backed at the government by New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas.

He charged that the treaty was "conceived in avarice and born in apathy," that "sharp Yankee traders took our naive and inexperienced Canadian negotiators for suckers."

"This treaty and this protocol," Mr. Douglas asserted, "means that we are selling our birthright for a mess of pottage, largely to satisfy the vanity of a provincial premier and to meet the needs of a power-hungry and water-hungry neighbor to the south."

Mr. Douglas seemed to be giving support to earlier threats by H. W. Herdridge (NDP-Kootenay West) that the 17-member NDP group in the house might launch a filibuster in an attempt to defeat the treaty.

GREAT BETRAYAL

"We will do everything in our power," declared Mr. Douglas Tuesday night, "to prevent this parliament giving its assent to what we consider a great betrayal of the interests of the people of B.C. and of Canada."

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who led the Canadian negotiators who obtained U.S. agreement to treaty modifications, opened the debate Tuesday with an appeal for speedy parliamentary approval of the pact.

Speaking in the debate for the Conservative party, Stuart Fleming (Okanagan-Revelstoke) said his party doesn't intend "to obstruct or hinder the passage of the treaty through the committee, but we do reserve the right, and will use the right, to scrutinize all the terms of the agreement, particularly the protocol, with the greatest care."

BLASTS GRITS

Then he blasted the Liberals for having "stalled" Columbia development when they were in office prior to 1957; for having contributed, while they were in opposition, to the breakdown in agreement between the then Conservative government and the B.C. government; and for having "vilified" the Conservatives and their treaty, then, on achieving office, turning about and endorsing substantially the same treaty.

The only change in principle, he said, was adoption by the Liberals of the B.C. government's proposal that B.C.'s share of downstream power benefits be sold in the U.S.

The reason for this, he said,

was that Premier Bennett was going ahead with Peace River development first.

"I think the people of B.C. are entitled to know whether they are going to get the Peace River power," Mr. Fleming stated, which is supposed to make these downstream power benefits surplus, at the same cost as the downstream benefits.

"Or are they going to be asked to pay 10, 12 or 14 mills for it?"

THOROUGHLY BAD

NDP leader Douglas said the treaty was "a thoroughly bad treaty."

"As someone has said, this treaty is very much like an old hag putting on lipstick and rouge, not so much to enhance her beauty but to hide her ugliness," he said.

Mr. Douglas also flayed the Liberals. During the last two federal election campaigns, he said, they were saying the treaty was a "sell-out, the export of jobs and a betrayal to the interests of the United States."

"Now, overnight, it has become a good treaty," he scoffed.

"I want to tell the house that if we are so forgetful of our duty as to ratify this treaty, the day will come in Canada when generations not very far distant from today will curse the day that the Parliament of Canada gave away this great heritage of the Canadian people."
